What

We

• Provide a safe and secured virtual platform for the cultural sector to share its content

• Provide a tool for the cultural sector to maintain, be resilient, and self-sustained financially during turbulent times and beyond

• Provide a tool for the cultural sector to maintain relationships, and enable it to engage, with its audiences virtually and globally

• Provide the necessary actual data for the cultural sector to analyze audience behavior given the changing social dynamics, in order to create informed future strategic plans
Findings and New Audiences

1. Reaching New Local Target Groups
   - Engaging the local youth who are not allowed to attend live events (due to parental restrictions - applicable only in certain contexts and countries)
   - Engaging the senior citizens who can’t attend live events or who have health risks
   - Engaging the younger technology generation who prefer spending their time online
   - Engaging families with low income who can’t afford buying tickets for all family members but can buy one online ticket and watch the content together

2. Global Reach
   - Engaging audiences from different regions
   - Achieving institutional visibility

3. Facilitating an additional revenue stream
   - Generating income from online content away from the dilemma of algorithms and discoverability
   - Contributing to the shift in cultural habits and spreading awareness that online creative content should not be always free. This will help the Cultural and Creative Sector become more resilient and not face any drawbacks in case of any other future crisis.

Challenges

Through the platform we are trying to facilitate the ecosystem for a “ONE GLOBAL CULTURAL SECTOR” to emerge and develop. The platform will allow artists, performers, and institutions and theatres to reach beyond their physical attendance, and still sell their tickets to their audiences world-wide. To achieve this goal, we are aware that there are a number of challenges that we work on addressing.

1- The Culture of Paying for Online Creative Content
We understand that in many countries, audiences are not used to the culture of paying for online creative content. In other countries, cultural and artistic events are not part of some people’s life yet, and hence they are not used to paying for performances or cultural events.

2- Support to Young and Emerging Artists
We understand that at the beginning, major users and beneficiaries of this platform will be artists and institutions who have the audience base that is willing to pay for online content and is large enough to generate income for those artists and institutions. Young and emerging artists and institutions will face some challenges in building an audience base that is willing to support them online.
To overcome this challenge, Basita.live has introduced the following support mechanisms:

- “Host Partner” refers to Cultural Organizations, Theatre, Independent Spaces or Government Venues who act as a liaison between “Basita.live” and artists in their community to offer them logistical, technical, and administrative support, such as, but not limited to:
  - Offering their venue for recording or live streaming their creative content / performances
  - Offering their technical support to organize the technical production of the creative content
  - Offering administrative support such as organizing payments, and cross-promotion of the events
