The Arab world is riddled with challenges of extremism, polarization and violence. But it is also a region capable of re-inventing itself. Empowering independent cultural production is crucial for creating vibrant Arab societies. It is by supporting individual self-expression with no strings attached that we engender critical thought, inclusive social engagement, appreciation of excellence and foster cross-cultural collaborations. These actions promote a deeper understanding of the region’s complex realities beyond the reductionist portrayals in mainstream media.

Maintaining our independence as a regional, accessible and professionally-run resource for artists and cultural institutions of the Arab region is of utmost importance. AFAC positions itself as a supporter, enabler and catalyst of cultural and artistic productions that are free of government control and market influence. This is the art that sheds light on issues left in the dark and that will revive the region’s confidence in its own creativity and its youth.

AFAC is concluding its 10th year of regional grant-making with a steadily growing number of beneficiaries and projects whose impact is reaching large segments of our communities. Through the hard work of its jurors, board members, management team and the support of a growing circle of supporters, AFAC has lived up to its credibility in the field and continues to be a model in the Arab region and beyond.

To kick off the second decade with a sustained imprint on independent artistic creation and production and on the advancement of Arab philanthropy for arts and culture, AFAC launched an evaluation process of its past ten years. It looks back on how our support through 950 grants, professional accompaniment, outreach and advocacy have made an impact and what we can do better. In moving forward, AFAC will retain its main grant-making activities while finetuning elements of support. We continue to listen to the aspirations of the artistic community in the region and to support underdeveloped artistic forms and cultural practices. New initiatives will be spearheaded based on priority and availability of funds.

AFAC’s advocacy and philanthropic efforts were met with generous contributions from a number of individual Arab donors who are paving the way, slowly but surely, for philanthropy for the arts and culture in the Arab region, in addition to multi-year contributions from the Open Society Foundations, the Ford Foundation, DOEN and the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Yet, as supporting cultural institutions, philanthropists and believers in the role of arts and culture, we still have a long way to go to rise to the level of creativity in the region. The cultural sector deserves more support and acknowledgement and it is through enlarging the circle of individual contributors, especially from within the Arab region, that we can do our artists, thinkers and cultural practitioners some justice. We will continue to invest in creative expression as part of our deeply held belief that it is the most relevant way to counter today’s harsh realities and inspire new visions for the region. We want to give our philanthropist supporters, our grantees, and the topics that they address, the recognition they deserve.

AFAC entered its 10th year in 2016 with major accomplishments, new partnerships and much pride in the creativity of its grantees. Four main highlights of the year comprise: the launch of a new program, the Arab-European Creative Platform (AECP); commissioning of a study to evaluate AFAC’s ten years of operation; the successful finalization of multi-year grants; and the disbursement of roughly $2.7 million in grants for 142 projects.
Launch of Arab-European Creative Platform

The Arab-European Creative Platform (AECP) is a multidisciplinary new special program. It mobilises intellectuals and artists, in the Arab world and Europe, to reflect critically on intolerance and hostility resulting from forced migration. The initiative engages the creative and artistic communities to shift perceptions and discourse, and propose innovative actions to affirm the potential of tolerance and integration. The reference book, “Europa: An Illustrated Introduction to Europe for Migrants and Refugees” was the first project funded by AFAC and launched on December 8 in Berlin. In addition, AFAC organised, in partnership with Allianz Cultural Foundation and in cooperation with Goethe-Institut and Süddeutsche Zeitung, “Europe and the Mediterranean in Times of Migration: Challenges and Opportunities”, a forum of discussions, readings, book presentation and music, October 11-12.

AFAC Ten-Year Study

To mark its 10th anniversary and embark on a second decade with artistic and cultural growth as well as a bolstered Arab philanthropy for arts and culture, AFAC launched an evaluation process in spring 2016. Its programs and operations were reviewed by an independent consultant, and recommendations from diverse stakeholders were solicited to guide its future programs and activities. A final report will be made available to the community at large by mid 2017. The evaluation process will continue with focus groups to delve deeper into the report’s recommendations. Based on the discussions and findings, AFAC will communicate a new strategy end 2017.

Fundraising

AFAC aspires for multi-year contributions from a diversity of donors in order to sustain and grow its grant-making and support programs. A total of 17 individual donors generously contributed a total of around $1 million to AFAC. In August 2016, AFAC successfully secured a multi-year grant from the Open Society Foundations (OSF) for which discussions had started early 2011. In parallel, another multi-year grant was concluded with the Ford Foundation to cover 2016-2020, including a BUILD grant, dedicated to internal institutional strengthening. Moreover, the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs doubled its contribution for the years 2016 and 2017. DOEN and Prince Claus Fund continue to support AFAC for the 8th and 3rd year respectively.
AFAC distributed 142 grants (111 for general grants and 31 for special programs) with a total grant amount of about $2.7 million. The total applications received in 2016 was 1249 (up from 1229 in 2015).

The General Grant calls for proposals opened twice a year and benefitted 111 projects out of 841 applicants, as follows: Visual Arts (21), Performing Arts (19), Music (27), Research, Training and Regional Events (22), and Cinema (22). Benefiting projects hailed from 15 Arab countries - Lebanon, Morocco, Egypt, Palestine, Syria, Jordan, Tunisia, Algeria, UAE, Sudan, Iraq, Yemen, Libya, Bahrain and Saudi Arabia – and 4 from diaspora – USA, UK, France and Switzerland. The total budget for the General Grants was $1.8 million.

In addition, AFAC continued with the four Special Programs – the AFAC Novel Writing Program (ANWP), the Arab Documentary Photography Program (ADPP), and the AFAC Documentary Program (ADP), including the newly launched Arab-European Creative Platform (AECP).

Applicants for the Special Programs were 408. AFAC benefitted 31 grantees as follows: ANWP (9), ADPP (9), ADP (11) and two projects under AECP. Grantees of ADP were from Syria (3), Lebanon (2), Palestine (2), Morocco (1), Tunisia (1), Sudan (1), Egypt (1) and the total budget was $316,000. Grantees of ADPP came from Egypt (3), Lebanon (2), Jordan (1), Algeria (1), Saudi Arabia (1), Morocco (1), Sudan (1), and the total budget was $221,000. Grantees of ANWP hailed from Egypt (2), Tunisia (2), Lebanon (1), Yemen (1), Morocco (1), and Palestine (1) and the total budget was $125,000.
International Recognition of AFAC Grantees

Prestigious prizes and international recognition were amassed by AFAC grantees. Forbes reviewed Khaled Malas’s project “Current Power in Syria” at the 2016 Marrakech Biennale in which also Sara Ouhaddou and Saba Innab exhibited their visual arts projects. Danya Hammoud won the Boghossian Prize 2016 as a performing artist. The New York Times reviewed the Web Archive of Bidoun – an AFAC grantee of Research/Training/Regional events. AFAC film grantees had a remarkable share in the limelight. “The Last of Us” by Ala Eddine Slim received the “Luigi De Laurentiis” Venice Award for Debut Film and the Best Technical Contribution Award at the Venice International Film Festival. Djemal Kerkar’s documentary film “Atlal” by Jaber Debei received the First Film Prize, two special mentions from the Institut Français, Award of the International Online Film Critic and the GNCR Prize at FID Marseille. At the 66th Berlinale, “Hedi” by Mohamed Ben Attia received First Film and Best Actor Award and “A Man Returned” by Mahdi Fleifel received Silver Bear for best short. AFAC organized the launching and signing ceremony of seven novels written by the 2015 ANWP participants at the Beirut 60th International Arab Book Fair: “A Family Outing” by Bassam Shams Aldin (Yemen), “Two Tickets to Sepphoris” by Salim Albeik (Palestine), “Ayyash” by Ahmad Hammam (Egypt), “Snow Burns” by Samir Youssef (Lebanon), “The Dangerous Neighborhood” by Mohammed Benmiloud (Morocco), “The Pagan’s Wind” by Mohsine Loukili (Morocco), and “Paradise of the Bats” by Boy John (Sudan).

In recognition of documentary photographic works of two AFAC grantees, The Washington Post section “In Sight: Images of our World” published a feature of Zied Ben Romdhane’s project “West of Life” and Hicham Gardaf was selected for the World Press Joop Masterclass.
Timeline: Grant-Making, Outreach and Cultural Advocacy

The principle activity of AFAC which is grant-making took place throughout the year. In addition, AFAC was present at various international festivals and forums, establishing partnerships and collaborations for the benefits of its grantees across a variety of fields – music, visual arts, literature and cinema. A communication and fundraising strategy is being developed since June 2016 with consultants to make the work of AFAC and its grantees more visible and communicated to a wider public; to facilitate fundraising; and strengthen the position of AFAC as a knowledge resource. Meanwhile, AFAC produced the following communication material, the highlight of which was the ACEF report 2015. It tells inspiring stories of impact that grantees express to demonstrate how art creates space for questioning, healing, and engagement.

- Release of the second Arab Creativity and Entrepreneurship Fund - ACEF Book profiling 50 grantees on AFAC website
- 5 grantee stories from diverse categories in pdf format on AFAC website
- 2 video stories under “Grantee Voices” on AFAC website
- Release of AFAC commissioned video on Contemporary Dance in the Arab Region
- AFAC’s commissioned video to close Crossroads special program
- AFAC Novel Writing Program (ANWP) infographic summarizing the three cycles
AFAC Board of Trustees and Team

AFAC welcomed four new board members in 2016: writer Elias Khoury; writer and historian Farouk Mardam-Bey; Deputy Chairperson for the Middle East at Sotheby’s, Roxane Zand; and AFAC’s former Executive Director, Oussama Rifahi. The newly appointed director is AFAC’s former Deputy Director, Rima Mismar. Four staff members moved on in 2016: communications and development, grants coordinator, project coordinator and finance officer. A new finance officer and a second grants manager were recruited in addition to a senior program manager who will focus on institutional development and new initiatives.

Finances

AFAC maintains a diversity of donors and is grateful for the generous contributions of institutions – Government of Norway, Open Society Foundations, The Ford Foundation, DOEN, and Prince Claus Fund – as well as 17 individual sponsors.

Outlook 2017

- Share the ten-year study of AFAC and start implementing recommendations following in-depth consultations with practitioners. Focus groups will be formed with experts in each category to draw practical recommendations based on a thorough reading of trends and priorities in the region.
- Celebrate ten years of AFAC in 2017 with a major event that pays tribute to grantees, jurors and philanthropists, and captures the knowledge of the arts and culture scene.
- Deepen outreach to marginalized communities of artists, beyond capital cities through tailored field visits and better dissemination of artistic products.
- Implement activities under the Arab-European Creative Platform – the newly launched program to address Arab migrant artists and those in exile. 2017 project activities will focus on a series of cultural workshops and panels in Germany, including a symposium on writing and migration, a theatre performance, and artistic workshops covering photography, visual arts and cinema for emerging artists in exile.
- Build on the experience of the AFAC Novel Writing Program to open a new Literature grant program. AFAC will consider specific needs in this field such as critical writing and research; children and youth literature; and playwriting.
- Launch the 4th edition of AFAC Film Week in Tangier, London (within the framework of Shubbak) and Berlin in 2017, building on the success of AFAC Film Week in Beirut, Cairo, Tunis and New York City.
- Increase awareness and mobilise philanthropy for arts and culture in the Arab region to expand and diversify donor support. AFAC will continue to encourage individual contributors in arts and culture through ACEF with the aim of raising another $1 million in 2017.
- Develop and facilitate a community of practice platform to engage current grantees and alumni in bi-annual thematic discussions on arts and culture.
- Envisage an increase of 20% in the 2017 grants’ budget.
Full Report
AFAC turned ten in 2016. Parallel to evaluating ten years of AFAC’s programs and operations, there is a need to probe into the environment in which artists and cultural institutions function across the Arab region. Equally important for AFAC is an understanding of the development of networks and exchanges. Moreover, AFAC continues to search for cues as to what encourages philanthropy for the arts and culture.
Anecdotes about arts and culture in the region are abundant. However, there is little documented comparative analysis that over time allows for a thorough reading of changes and trends in the Arab region.

If AFAC – staff, alumni, grantees and supporters – were to come up with questions over the next five years to better understand the context in which artists and cultural institutions operate across the Arab region, what would the questions be? How much do we actually know and what do we do with that knowledge? What in a localized experience can be useful for insight and adaptation in another context?

AFAC’s own database and ten-year experience with such a vast array of artists and cultural institutions holds some insights. And yet, to answer many of the questions, the exercise needs to be collective. AFAC encourages those interested in researching and analyzing the region through an arts and culture lens to enrich and guide us.

As part of the evaluation process and focus group discussions that will take place throughout 2017, here are some teasers that we are curious about:

• What have been major changes in the past ten years in terms of artistic initiatives and actors in the Arab region and across diverse fields?
• What are the challenges and priorities in each field (music, performing arts, visual arts, cinema, and literature) and in research on the scene in the region?
• What are the main factors that have been promoting enabling cultural environments across the region?

What are the trends in arts and culture for the next five years?

• What is the history and motivation of philanthropy for arts and culture in the Arab region and what are the prospects of further engagement in the next five years?
• What is the relevance of arts and culture in a context of displacement and intolerance? What are case studies from the Arab region?
• How does artistic creation flourish in situations of conflicts, economic hardship and in diaspora? Are there documented experiences across the region?
• What are examples of inter-regional cooperation and exchange in arts and culture?
• What are the challenges and breakthroughs in circulation/distribution/dissemination of artistic production specific to each field?
• Is there a mapping of critical writings on arts and culture related to the Arab region? How to support critical writing by individuals and institutions? How to promote circulation of research and papers?
• What roles do artists give themselves if any? How are they engaged directly or indirectly in societal and political issues in their societies?
• How does the sector support advocacy for freedom of expression and cultural rights?
• What are examples of horizontal leadership within collective artistic initiatives? What allows for individual empowerment while strengthening the collective? Are there comparative case studies across the Arab region?
• What inspires creative industries and what are trends for the next five years?
Established as a reliable resource for artists and cultural institutions working in a variety of fields, AFAC’s Annual General Grants Program has traditionally catered for six categories: Literature, Performing Arts, Visual Arts, Cinema, Music and RTR (Research/Training/Regional events). Since 2014 and until end 2016, the Literature call was replaced with the AFAC Novel Writing Program.

The General Grants first call opened on February 1st and closed on May 1st, catering to Visual Arts & Performing Arts. Grantees were announced July 23rd & 25th respectively. AFAC moved up the call for Cinema to allow the jurors more time to evaluate the applications. The Cinema call opened May 1st and closed August 1st while the call for Music and RTR (Research/Training/Regional events) opened June 1st and closed September 1st. Announcement of grantees took place on November 15th for Music, November 17th for RTR and November 18th for Cinema.
AFAC has distributed general grants to 111 projects this year out of 841 general grants applicants.

AFAC’s annual open call for general grant programs is announced on the website and social media and through press releases to an extensive network of regional media.

AFAC’s General Grant for Visual Arts supports painting, sculpting, photography, installations, audio-video arts and multi-media works of a contemporary and innovative nature. The grant can support exhibitions, visual arts book publications as well as art production.

AFAC’s General Grant for Performing Arts is open to classical, folk and experimental theatre and dance performances from across the Arab region, including contemporary dance, public intervention performances, street arts and festivals. It also supports playwriting, acting, directing, dancing and choreography workshops.

AFAC’s General Grant for Music is open to all kinds of music composition and production in the Arab world including classical, tarab, Arab folk music, hip hop, reggae, jazz, and fusion, electronic sound and Arabic alternative music. It offers funding for music conservatories, music production, collaborations, performances, album recordings and other musical projects. The grant also supports music archives, research, workshops, performances and festivals at local, inter-Arab and cross-cultural levels.

AFAC’s General Grant for Cinema is open to all kinds of film projects – shorts, feature-length fiction and documentaries, animation and experimental. AFAC offers funding for development, production and post-production. Projects applying for a development grant are eligible for a maximum of $10,000 while projects applying for a production/postproduction grant are eligible for a maximum of $50,000.

In 2016, AFAC distributed grants to 142 projects (111 for general grants and 31 for special programs) out of a total of 1249 applications.

AFAC’s General Grant for Research/Training/Regional Events is open for projects in all fields of cultural production and gives AFAC the flexibility to support capacity-building workshops, residencies, artistic and cultural research, training projects, as well as regional events like festivals, competitions and cross-cultural collaborations.

AFAC’s juror committees are newly selected every year to bring together professionals from all across the region to lend their expertise and insights on to the wide scope of artistic and cultural projects that AFAC supports. They evaluate hundreds of applications and select the most compelling projects to support. Jurors are called to evaluate on four criteria: Quality, Innovation, Relevance and Cost.

To uphold our high standards of independence and professionalism, AFAC jurors remain anonymous to each other during the evaluation period, submitting their markings independently before they convene for the final selection meeting. AFAC discloses the identities of juror committee members to the public only after the announcement of the grantees in each respective category is made.

In recognition of the growing network of AFAC jurors, AFAC continues to update its jury database which was first published online in May 2014 as "AFAC Jurors (2007-2013)". More than 200 cultural critics, curators and producers from the Arab region have been involved in AFAC’s juries.

“As an artist, if I were to measure the development, I would say that the Arab region is at the height of a social-artistic revolution that is moving rapidly. We are making the best of what we have; however, in terms of a group movement, and a general consciousness, we have not achieved much. We are still shedding the skin of a past civilization.”

Pump House Gallery, Each fighting its own little battle in happy ignorance
The Jury committee for the 2016 Visual Arts was composed of curator and gallery owner Najlaa Al-Ageli (Libya), artist Shurooq Amin (Kuwait), and artist and filmmaker Khalil Joreige (Lebanon).

Jury Statement

“The jury has decided, after prolonged deliberation, on July 19th 2016, to award 14 candidates under the individual category, and 7 candidates under the institutions category. The selection process was based on diversity, attempting to distribute equitably according to case by case study, which led to a rich selection both geographically and in terms of medium.

The jury selected according to the criteria set by AFAC : relevance, quality, innovation and cost, firstly independently, then deliberated together ultimately arriving at the final decisions.

The jury noticed many recurrent concepts connecting places, time and space, migration and belonging, territory and revisiting the past without nostalgia, but rather with concern for the present. Several projects crossed over from one medium to another. Many projects were publications and/or film. The jury decided to help certain projects that were strong and necessary in these troubled times and was aware of those that depended on and relied for their existence on grants of AFAC. The jury had some difficult choices to make to stay close to the way it sees the goal of the grant.”

“It is only through creation and expression that the reality of those affected by the war will be exposed, and the evolving culture of Syria preserved.”

– Mithkal Alzghair, Syria
Performing Arts grantee, "Displacement"
The 2016 Jury Committee for Performing Arts was composed of actor Carlos Chahine (Lebanon), theater director and actor Sulayman Al-Bassam (Kuwait), and theater director Oussama Hallal (Syria).

Jury Statement

“We have undergone a thorough assessment of the projects received in this call and we commend them on their quality and the seriousness and intelligence of their approach and presentation. We have noted however how narrow the range of topics addressed was, with an overwhelming majority dealing with the issues of violence and war, memory and war-related memory, hence reflecting, not surprisingly, on the concerns of a new generation of Arab artists. We also noticed a large number of dance and performance projects, combining the contemporary with the traditional, as well as a strong drive from artists to identify alternative spaces, as well as new and innovative forms of performing.

We hope that the selected projects will offer fresh and innovative ways to study and reflect on such topics, privileging inventiveness, originality and relevance to the known and established.”

The 2016 Jury Committee for RTR was composed of Associate Professor of Art History at NYU Abu Dhabi Salwa Mikdadi (Palestine); author, poet and translator Fadi Tofeili (Lebanon); and the founder and director of Majal.org, a network of online platforms that amplify under-reported and marginalized voices throughout the Middle East and North Africa Esra'a Al Shafei (Bahrain).

Jury Statement

“The diversity and vitality of ideas were at the core of the brilliant proposals this year has seen. These ideas gave an utmost attention to detail, precision and care to things otherwise abandoned, forgotten or leading to extinction despite them being of paramount importance. The recipients were also distinguished by moving forward with a critical spirit, a profound discussion, and a widening of their exposure and accessibility. As exciting and productive the deliberation of projects was, it was also dense and demanding; continuously requiring long reflexions, patience and reconsiderations. These reconsiderations, however, were not merely about choosing the winners of the grants but touched upon the opinions and visions shared by the jury, which resulted from engaging the proposals, their ensuing discussions as well as in ensuring a fair evaluation, combined with recommendations and remarks. We believe that this approach allowed new and important possibilities for both AFAC and its grant recipients to on the one hand, uphold the superior creative level of the proposals, and on the other to keep the dialogue and communication, possibilities for distribution, preservation and exhibition open. The jury therefore relied on the usual criteria for the evaluation of the projects, taking into account their relevance, innovation, quality as well as cost. We are delighted that the chosen projects demonstrate a expansive geographical scope in line with the growing breadth of Arabic culture in the Arab world and beyond it while also bearing in mind the gender balance and regional diversity.”

The 2016 Jury Committee for Music was composed of singer and songwriter Maryam Saleh (Egypt), the saxophone player and composer Toufic Farroukh (Lebanon), and composer Issa Boulos (Palestine).

Jury Statement

“Our work as jury involved hours of preparation that encompassed listening, reading, watching and reviewing all intricate details of the proposed projects. The applications were not only indicative of the current state of the musical arts in the Arab region but also an expression of hope, dignity and resilience. Overall, the proposed projects offered a diverse array of ideas that fluctuated between cutting edge and experimental to the classics and multidisciplinary. Some were visionary and daring; some were immensely fresh, others were ahead of their time; some embraced excellence but some unfortunately didn't rise to the challenge and/or balanced all the necessary components of a successful project. Regardless of our personal opinions, we honored and embraced all ideas, approaches, genres, and perspectives, and treated all proposals with diligence and a strong sense of equality. It was yet upon us to make the difficult decisions and support some but not all.

All proposed projects, in some ways, spoke to the aspirations of artists and/or their strengths and the quality and seriousness of their work. Other proposals more intrinsically shed the light on the true need for exposure, enlightenment, art and music education. Although these conditions seem to be inherent and chronically problematic in the Arab region, we understand that it is not only the responsibility of artists at the frontiers to better the human condition and reflect on our collective or individualistic identities, but it rather goes hand in hand with our drive as communities and governments to progress and evolve. With the hope that all applicants/artists find their path to meaning, we truly believe it is still within their reach to aim high, train, improve and never stop learning.”

The jury committee for 2016 was composed of film editor and co-founder of Djinn House Productions Michelle Tyan (Lebanon), the filmmaker Scandar Copti (Palestine), and writer, journalist, translator and researcher in linguistics and Algerian contemporary history, Yassine Temlali (Algeria).

Jury Statement

“The jury was privileged to have had that insight into the imaginations of Arab filmmakers. The varied worlds of cinema suggested by each and every director and created by each and every project proved at once refreshing and reassuring of the vibrancy of Arab filmmaking in the region. One cannot but anticipate with eagerness the outcome of this mosaic of personal, intimate, engaged and critical selection of film projects. Despite the hardships accompanying the evaluation of 64 film projects, mostly applying with full-length scripts, the overall process was more than enjoyable, fresh and eye-opening. The level of pre-selected projects was more than very good.

The jury would like to point out three important aspects that had taken us by surprise in this commission and selection: The high ratio of female directors is something that, in our perspective, bears hope for the region; the individuality that is highly present in the projects is in fact a position that assumes responsibility and calls for action; the choices made by most filmmakers in this selection are unconventional, experimental, bold and risky and we were thrilled to have been able to acknowledge those choices.”
Alongside the general grant program, AFAC offers special programs that address particular trends and needs.

The Arab-European Creative Platform is a newly launched 3-year initiative that is multi-disciplinary and that galvanizes Arab and European artists and institutions for the production of art, culture and knowledge in response to polarization due to forced migration.

The AFAC Novel Writing Program supports aspiring fiction writers and is an intensive year-long training program offered by AFAC in lieu of the annual grant for Literature as a response for the need to offer professional support to emerging authors in the Arab region.

The AFAC Documentary Photography Program supports compelling non-stereotypical and unconventional visual documentation of important social issues and narratives relevant to the Arab region, in recognition of the image’s power to document, educate and advocate.

The AFAC Documentary Program supports feature-length, medium-length and short documentary projects, in production and post-production, addressing the social realities in the Arab world in creative and compelling ways.

AFAC benefited 31 grantees out of 408 applicants for the Special Programs.
AFAC launched a new program in 2016. The Arab-European Creative Platform (AECP) is a 3-year initiative in response to alarming polarizations, as a result of massive forced migration, affecting both European and Arab societies. It is a multi-disciplinary platform that aims to galvanize Arab and European artists and institutions for the production of art, culture and knowledge. The program explores innovative actions that probe both imagination and expression and that challenge negative perceptions of migrants/refugees in mainstream media, among decision-makers and key cultural actors.

AFAC plans to convene a series of cultural workshops and panels initially in Germany, between artists and intellectuals in exile and European interlocutors and give voice to seasoned Arab artists who have gone through exile themselves. This includes forums to discuss the relationship between migration and literature; co-productions in theatre; organizing of AFAC film week; and facilitating artistic workshops on photography, visual arts and cinema in collaboration with partners. The aim is to give a platform for Arab creative expression in exile and support emerging artists to build networks in their new context.

AFAC started developing this program initially in partnership with German cultural institutions on co-productions and commissions; given the openness of German policies towards refugees out of Syria. AFAC hired Diana al-Jaroudi, the director of Dox-Box to conduct a survey on the needs of Arab migrant artists in Germany, to guide AFAC’s actions and the final report was delivered end 2016. AFAC also recruited Rasha Salti, a well-established curator and film programmer, a former grantee and close collaborator of AFAC to help shape the program, oscillating between Beirut and Berlin. In parallel, discussions took off with potential partners of AECP in Berlin.

AFAC engaged with the Berlinale Film Festival about the possibility of a culinary cinema evening during the next edition of the festival in 2017. Discussions were also pursued with Chris Dercon (the former Tate Modern Museum director) who newly took on the directorship of the Volksbühne, one of the main theaters of Berlin. The plan is to have AECP co-produce Mohammad Al Attar’s play, IPHIGENIE in partnership with the Volksbühne, and to integrate year-round programming of Arab creative content in the Volksbühne’s Red Salon. Partnership is also confirmed with the Heinrich Boel Foundation on the Forum on literature and migration.

The first initiative that the AECP supported was the production and distribution of "Europa: An Illustrated Introduction to Europe for Migrants and Refugees", a book initiated by a group of Magnum photographers and journalists who have been covering both the refugee crisis in Europe and the many contexts across the Middle East, Asia, and Africa. Written in Arabic, Farsi, English, and French, this collaborative and independent initiative is intended as an educational tool to inform, engage, and facilitate community exchange. "Europa" offers an introduction to the motivations behind the creation of the European Union, how it developed, and the relevant debates that will determine its future. Through first-person testimonies, readers are also introduced to many of the different people who make up Europe today, who in their own words tell their stories of displacement, war, solidarity, and reconciliation. "Europa" is an independent nonprofit project, and the book is not available for purchase. An electronic PDF version of the book is available on AFAC’s website as well printed editions which were widely distributed to stakeholders working with migrants.

"Europa" has been produced in partnership with Magnum Photos, Al-liquindoi, and On The Move, with support from Magnum Foundation, the Geneviève McMillan-Reba Stewart Foundation, MDIC, the Protection System for Asylum Seekers and Refugees (SPRAR), and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR); and in cooperation with Allianz Cultural Foundation.

The AECP First Forum: "Europe and the Mediterranean in Times of Migration, Challenges and Opportunities" was organized by AFAC in partnership with Allianz Cultural Foundation and in cooperation with Goethe-Institut and Süddeutsche Zeitung. It was a forum of discussions, readings, book presentation and music. The event took place on October 11 and 12, 2016 at Allianz Forum in Berlin and marked the official launch of AECP.

While the massive influx of refugees to Germany has been regarded as the signal of danger and discontent by those skeptical or opposed to the government’s response to the humanitarian tragedy in Syria, proponents of the policy have seen opportunity. This intensifying polarisation overcasts the lived experience of exile, the daily negotiations of encountering a new reality and a new culture. Where does the exile’s gaze look? Is it forward or backward looking,
AFAC Novel Writing Program (ANWP)

ANWP is a special program launched in 2014 as a year-long training program to support emerging novelists in developing and completing their literary ideas. The aim of the program is to focus on fiction writing and to improve the standard of creative writing in the Arab region; to train authors to deepen their approach and their skills in character development, plot development and story narration; to select and showcase strong literary narratives from the Arab region; and, last but not least, to support wider access to literature by collaborating with publishing houses to publish the resulting works. Three program cycles allowed AFAC to support a total of 25 emerging authors from 9 countries, selected from 668 applications, to create a safe place to express, offer and receive critique and interact. It gave a forum for participants to deepen themes and elaborate on critical topics that relate to the personal, social and political. The unique combination of professional and personal has turned the ANWP into a life-changing experience for its participants and has produced a rich series of novels.

The third and last edition of AFAC’s Novel Writing Program continued in 2016 under the supervision of renowned Lebanese writer Jabbour Douaihy. Eight writers were chosen to participate in the program made up of three intensive workshops before the completion of the eight novels. AFAC will support the publication of selected works with the Lebanese publishing house Dar Al-Saqi.

“A reader may live a different and new experience when reading a novel. And this may be how literature influences a society. What will readers say when they see the suffering of May because of society’s rebuttal of her sexual orientation? Will readers reject her? Will they be neutral? Or will they be sympathetic?”

Process

Between March 31st and April 5th in 2016, the 8 grantees of ANWP 2015 gathered in Beirut for one last intensive week with their mentor, Jabbour Douaihy, to discuss their final novel drafts. Subsequent changes were deemed impressive to the grantees and the mentor alike. The changes which the novels underwent between the first and this last workshop were impressive to the grantees themselves and to the mentor.

The first workshop of ANWP 2016 was held in Ehden, June 17-21, where the participants had the chance to discuss their characters, plots, writing techniques and other issues related to their novels, with the other participants in through group discussions, and one-on-one exchanges with the mentor in one-on-one meetings. The second workshop for ANWP 2016 took place October 26-and November 1 and included readings of draft narratives fine-tuning the plot, the characters and style of writing. The final workshop is foreseen in April 2017.

Publishing

The 2015 ANWP cycle culminated in the publication of seven novels (out of nine) which were available to the public during the 60th Beirut International Book Fair in December 2016 in addition to performed readings of 40 minutes by Lebanese and Syrian actors - Caroline Hatem, Dona Mkhayel, and Omar Gebaii - and signature of all novels. The novels were:

A Family Outing by Bassam Shams Aldin from Yemen
Two tickets to Sepphoris by Salim Albeik from Palestine
Ayyash by Ahmad Hammam from Egypt
Snow Burns by Samir Youssef from Lebanon
The Dangerous Neighborhood by Mohammed Benmiloud from Morocco
The Pagan’s Wind by Mohsine Loukili from Morocco
Paradise of the Bats by Boy John from Sudan

In addition, three novels from the 2014 first cycle were published in 2016; Naked Houses by Mostafa Abd Rabu, and The Day Azreal Committed Suicide by Arthur Gabriel Yak, both published in Egypt with Dar Al Ain, and The Castle by Soukaina Habiballah published in Lebanon with Arab Scientific Publisher.

With the closure of the program, AFAC produced an infographic summarizing important information from the 668 received applications as well as those selected in the period 2014-2016. It highlighted the general themes and sub-themes of novels, reflecting what is on the mind of young Arab authors in the past three years.
ADPP was launched for a period of three years 2014-2016. Its objectives are to raise the level of creative documentary photography in the Arab region; to train photographers and expand their approaches to visual storytelling; to share strong visual narratives from the Arab region regionally and internationally; and to explore wider access to documentary photography and a more active engagement with its audiences. Photographers may propose to work in a range of non-fiction narrative styles, from classic documentary photography to more experimental visual storytelling, and include audio and video elements.

ADPP encompasses not only a grant but also training and one-on-one mentorship to accompany the photographers in articulating their photo story. The importance of this initiative in the long-term is to develop a network of authentic and diverse local photographers and to stimulate dialogue with photographers from outside the region who are engaged and working on the region.

Co-launched with the Prince Claus Fund in collaboration with the Magnum Foundation in 2014, the annual mentorship program over three years (2014-2016) will become a regular grant program, due to the great interest it generates from artists, partners and donors.

In 2016, AFAC launched the third edition of the special program. The first workshop was held in Beirut in August, and since then the photographers are working on their projects, with the follow up of mentors.
Progress

The second workshop for ADPP 2015 grantees was held in Beirut February 25-29, 2016. The photographers presented their final works and discussed with their mentors the best way to present their projects to the public. ADPP 2015 projects were all completed and are available on www.arabdocphotography.org.

The first workshop of ADPP 2016 grantees was held at AFAC’s office in Beirut August 26-29, 2016. The ten talented photographers who participated in this intensive workshop presented their previous works and their present projects, discussed ways of developing the concepts and methodologies of work, in group discussions and one-on-one meetings with the mentors. The second ADPP 2016 workshop is scheduled for the third week of February 2017 and the completion of the projects is scheduled for March 2017.

The ADPP Juror Committee comprised Magnum Foundation President Susan Meiselas (USA), Sursock Museum Director and former director of Arab Image Foundation Zeina Arida (Lebanon) and visual artist Tarek Al-Ghossein (Kuwaiti of Palestinian Origins).

Jury Statement

“The Jury for the 2016 Arab Documentary Photography Program selected 10 projects from an open call with over 100 proposals from 19 countries, launching the third cycle of the program. Once again, we were pleased to see a wide variety of approaches to be explored within the genre of Documentary Photography. This ranges from a very classic approach in Black and White focusing on a deserted mine in Morocco in “Bribes de Vie” to a reportage style, but this time in color, about disappearance of public spaces in Lebanon in “Dalieh; On the Edge”, in contrast to a more conceptual approach utilizing collage and text with the project “Hide and Seek” about graveyards as playgrounds for children in Egypt.

There was a great diversity in the topics addressed as well. The spectrum of themes moves from the extremely personal such as in “Beyond Sacrifice” which explores the lives of celibate women in Lebanon, to wider issues such as “Infertile Crescent” which will document the ecological effects of the controversial Red - Dead Sea pipeline.”
AFAC Documentary Program (ADP), was initially launched in partnership with the Ford Foundation’s JustFilms, initially a three-year program (2013-2015) and continues to be supported. AFAC welcomes, on an annual basis, submission of feature-length, medium-length and short documentaries in the production and post-production phases. It aims to build on AFAC’s dedication to documentary film by supporting established and emerging Arab documentary filmmakers that are addressing the social realities of a changing Arab world in creative and compelling ways.

The 2016 Jury Committee of AFAC Documentary Program included Producer Camille Laemle (France), documentary filmmaker Jihan Al Tahri (Egypt), and filmmaker Kamal Al Jafari (Palestine).

Jury Statement

"After concluding deliberations, the 2016 AFAC documentary jury would like to share its appreciation of the exceptional quality of the projects submitted to the 4th cycle. The jury gathered in Beirut, found the themes of the projects coming from 10 countries across the region a clear expression of the urgencies that face Arab populations in general. There is distinct concern with the fall out of the upheavals that have struck at the heart of Arab societies over the past five years. Transformation and transition seem to be key issues that have grasped the imagination of the talented filmmakers whose projects we examined. The vital role of the image and the vision that the filmmakers transmit through their narratives will undoubtedly play a crucial role in discerning a better future. The entire selection demonstrated the courage with which this generation of filmmakers is willing to take risks, question society and interrogate political realities. After a series of in depth discussions and considerations, the Jury has concluded to attribute its support to 11 projects. The winning projects highlight the strong vision of a disparate number of talented directors who transmit through their lenses a glimmer of hope despite the grim realities of their subject matter. The charismatic protagonists chosen to navigate each of the chosen narratives demonstrate a clear and deep-rooted connection of the filmmakers with the society they are attempting to decipher. With knowledge, engagement and self-reflection the projects lend a critical eye to the social and political realities of our time. Most importantly, the powerful cinematic approach that transpires from the chosen projects, underlines the consolidation of a wave of skilful documentary filmmakers whose distinct voice will continue to be heard. Arab documentary filmmakers have undoubtedly acknowledged the unique position they hold to transmit our collective stories. These projects are simply representative of how the tool of their trade is an indispensable resource for transformation in the Arab World."

Professional Support

1. Editing Consultancy Workshop

For the third consecutive year, AFAC partnered with Talents Beirut to offer three of its documentary supported projects an editing consultancy workshop (September 22-26). This year’s mentors were Joshua Oppenheimer, Jean-Pierre Rehm, Jacques Comets, Claire Atherton and Rania Stephan. The three projects that benefited from technical and artistic consultations in the field of editing were: The Swing by Cyril Aris (Lebanon), Tangled in Imbroglio by Walid Tayaa (Tunisia) and Khartoum Offsides by Marwa Zein (Sudan).

2. International Documentary Film Festival Amsterdam (IDFA)

For the third year in a row, selected ADP grantees benefited from networking opportunities in the frame of the International Documentary Festival Amsterdam (IDFA, November 16-27). AFAC was present at various international festivals and forums, establishing partnerships and collaborations for the benefits of its grantees across a variety of fields – music, visual arts, literature and cinema.

AFAC at Berlin Film Festival

Berlin, February 11-22

AFAC attended the 66th Berlin Festival and held a reception in celebration of the works of its grantee filmmakers which attracted 100 guests from the field of film. Four AFAC-supported films were selected to screen in the Festival's different sections: Maher Abi Samra’s “A Maid For Each” and Tamer Al Said’s “In the Last Days of The City” screened in the Forum; Mahdi Fleifel’s “A Man Returned” in the Berlinale Shorts Competition; Mohamed Ben Attia’s “Hedi” in the Official Competition. All four films were crowned with major awards during the closing ceremony where “Hedi” received the Best First Film Award and Silver Bear for Best actor; Fleifel nabbed the Silver Bear for best short film; Al Said the Caligari Award for distribution inside Germany and Abi Samra the Peace Award.
AFAC Visits Amman

March 2-3
AFAC conducted a field visit to Amman-Jordan during the first days of March. The visit was intended to connect with the community of local artists and address their questions and inquiries related to AFAC grant-making processes. AFAC was hosted by Darat Al Funun-Khaled Shuman Foundation in The Lab space which welcomed around 50 artists from all fields. The AFAC team presented the work of the institution, its programs, guidelines, open calls, in addition to examples from supported works. The presentation was complemented by two video screenings, one narrating the story of AFAC and the other showcasing the work of photographer and AFAC grantee Omar Imam. A Q&A round followed the presentation in a warm and informal atmosphere. The second day, a dinner, hosted by Mary Nazzal, brought together AFAC friends, grantees and people interested in the arts and culture.

AFAC Special Screening for Tadmor at Dawawine

Beirut, May 12
As part of AFAC’s efforts to showcase the works of its grantees, a special screening for the documentary film Tadmor was held on May 12th in Dawawine Theater. The film which recounts the horrific stories of eight Lebanese men who were detained at Tadmor prison during the eighties and nineties, was attended by a select group of about 35 people and in the presence of filmmakers Monika Borgmann and Lokman Slim.

AFAC Film Week

Tunisia, May 25-June 1
After two successful editions in Beirut and Cairo, AFAC held its third Film Week in two Tunisian cities simultaneously: Carthage and Tunis. The vision of film week is to be an event that tours the various Arab cities, exploring the growing regional appetite for independent Arab films, while reaching out to audiences that are otherwise denied access to those films. The third AFAC film week happened in partnership with CineMadart in Carthage, and Cinema le Rio in Tunis. It had a vivid and engaged audience of 1000 viewers. The program comprised 16 films from Lebanon, Syria, Egypt, Palestine, Algeria, and Tunisia and included feature-length documentaries and fictions and short films. Most of the directors were flown to Tunisia to attend their films’ screenings and to meet and discuss with the Tunisian audience. The 16 screened films were:
“Coming Forth by Day” by Hela Lotfy/ "The Wanted 18” by Amer Shomali/ "The Valley” by Ghassan Salhab/ “Silvered Water” by Oussama Mohamed/ "Family Albums” by Raed Andoni (Producer) / "We Were Communists” by Maher Abi Samra / "Checks & Balances” by Malek Bensmail / "74” by Rania and Raed Rafei/ “Monumentum” by Fadi Yeniturk/ "It was better Tomorrow” by Dora Bouchoucha/ "Yasmina ou les 60 Noms de l’Amour” by Nacer Khemir/ "As I open my Eyes” by Leyla Bouzid/ "Waves ’98” by Elie Dagher/ "And on A Different Note” by Mohamad Shawki.

AFAC Film Night at Sursock Museum in Beirut

Year-Round
AFAC and Sursock Museum announced a year-long partnership which brings forward a monthly series of screenings showcasing the work of Arab filmmakers supported by AFAC over the past years. Entitled “AFAC Film Night”, the series intend to offer local audiences a film screening each month and a glimpse at independent filmmaking in the region which suffers from under-exposure and little accessibility due to the absence of any distribution structure for Arab films within the Arab region. Curated by AFAC and Sursock Museum, the screenings are divided into four programs, each with a title at which the films’ narratives converge: Displacement, Entrapment, Resilience, and Retrospection. Each of the four programs comprised three feature-length films screened over 3 months.

AFAC-FIDMarseille Partnership

Marseille, July 14-17
Early in 2016, the FIDMarseille Film Festival approached AFAC for a three-year partnership whereby FIDlab will be selecting each year an AFAC-supported project to be part of this international coproduction platform, which offers a meeting place for discussing film projects selected from all over the world. For the 8th edition, two AFAC-supported projects “Ouroboros” by Basma Alsharif, produced by Mohanad Yaqubi, from Palestine, and “The Last of Us” by Alaeddine Slim (Tunisia) participated in FIDLab 2016 and won three awards. Additionally, AFAC’s Deputy Director and Film Programs Manager was invited to be part of the jury.

“Visual Storytelling and Social Change” Panel

Institut Francais, Beirut, August 29-30
On the sideline of the first 2016 ADPP workshop, Magnum Foundation, in partnership with AFAC, held a public event titled “Visual Storytelling and Social Change: Strategies for Engaged Photography”, exploring collaborative practice and emerging narrative forms as creative approaches for activating engagement on critical global issues. The event included presentations by Eric Gottesman, Tanya Habjouqa, and Emma Raynes, as well as a discussion with Susan Meiselas and Oussama Rifahi, followed by a reception. The second day was dedicated to six young photographers who presented works in progress and discussed ways of exhibiting and developing the work with mentors and gallerists.

AFAC Partnership with Talents Beirut

Beirut, September 22-26
In the framework of Talents Beirut, AFAC joined forces with Metropolis Association to give three projects supported by AFAC the opportunity to benefit from technical and artistic consultation in the field of editing. The directors and editors of “The Swing” (Lebanon), “Tangled in Imbroglio” (Tunisia), and “Khartoum Offsides” (Sudan) worked with 4 mentors over five days to discuss and advance their rough cuts.

AFAC Launches 7 Novels with Dar Al-Saqi - ANWP 2015 Grantees

Beirut 60th International Arab Book Fair, December 4
A book-signing ceremony was held to launch seven new novels produced within the framework of the AFAC Program, under the supervision of the novelist Jabbour Douaihy and published by Dar Al-Saqi. There were performed readings by Caroline Hatem, Dana Michael and Omar Jbai, bringing to the audience the texts’ mood, characters and ideas. Furthermore, a meeting with a group of journalists and critics open to the public was held at the “T-Marbouta” cafe in Hamra, in the presence of the writers and mentor. The seven novels written by AFAC participants in the 2015 ANWP at the Beirut 60th International Arab Book Fair were: “A Family Outing” by Bassam Shams Aldin (Yemen), “Two tickets to Sepphoris” by Salim Albeik (Palestine), “Ayyash” by Ahmad Hammam (Egypt), “Snow Burns” by Samir Youssef (Lebanon), “The Dangerous Neighborhood” by Mohammed Bennmiloud (Morocco), “The Pagan’s Wind” by Mohsine Loukili (Morocco), “Paradise of the Bats” by Boy John (Sudan).
One of AFAC’s main objectives is to encourage philanthropy in support of cultural and artistic initiatives that make a positive impact in the Arab region. Creativity and entrepreneurship are vital if we are to reform Arab communities and promote more authentic representations of who we are. As we grapple with narratives of intolerance and extremism, independent voices are best positioned to portray the region’s complex realities but also its openness. When investors support Arab artists and creative entrepreneurs in developing their projects, the return is positive impact on many levels – personal fulfillment, social engagement as well as income-generating opportunities.

Through the Arab Creativity and Entrepreneurship Fund (ACEF), AFAC is able to mobilize individuals to invest in arts and culture and contribute to the potential of independent grant-giving on the artistic scene throughout the Arab region and in dialogue with other regions. ACEF uses an intuitive approach to quantify return on artistic investment.
AFAC invites readers to delve into the world of artists and cultural institutions through the Arab Creativity and Entrepreneurship Fund (ACEF) which serves three functions: advocacy, research and fundraising.

AFAC Participates in "The Future of Non-Profits in Culture and Development"

Amsterdam, February 4-5
AFAC was invited by the Prince Claus Fund to participate to an extended discussion on the future of the non-profit field of culture and development. Recent global trends indicate that funding for non-profits active in this area are decreasing. The meeting took place in Amsterdam on February, 4 and 5th and brought together influential actors in the field to address recent changes, share knowledge and experiences, and think together about the future. This meeting is part of a larger series of meetings with national and international stakeholders, which the Prince Claus Fund is organizing in preparation for its new Vision for the Future. AFAC and PCF are partners on the Arab Documentary Photography Program with the Magnum Foundation which is currently in its third cycle.
AFAC Participates in the Arab Foundations Forum

Amman, February 8
AFAC participated in the board meeting of the Arab Foundation Forum in Amman on February 8th. AFF’s director Naila Farouky presented the budget for 2016 and the list of networking events and capacity-building programs that will be offered to AFF members in the year, as well as a potential program related to a new coalition between members and international organisations active in the field of youth empowerment. A networking event in the evening brought together more than 60 participants over a panel discussion and Q&A session on the issue of: “Unemployment in Jordan: Addressing the Gender Gap in the Labor Force.” The panel was led by Dr. Omar Razzaz, Dr. Salma Nims and Mrs. Nesreen Barakat.

AFAC Participates in the Third Edition of “21, 39 Jeddah Art Week"

Jeddah, February 10-13
AFAC participated in the third edition of the 21, 39 Jeddah Art Week between February 10-13th, organized by the Saudi Art Council. This year’s event featured a number of exhibitions, workshops and panel talks: “Earth and Ever After” curated by Mona Khazindar and Hamza Serafi, a retrospective of Ayman Yossri at Athr gallery and the “Al Hangar” exhibition by 11 young Saudi artists. Following a panel on “Supporting Artistic Endeavor: Artists in Residence”, Oussama Rifahi discussed “Cultural Philanthropy: Sustaining the Arts and Culture Sector” together with Dr. Maha Senan from the Saudi Society for Preservation of Heritage, Nina Hoas from UBS Philanthropy Advisory and Venetia Porter from the British Museum in a panel moderated by Salma Tuqan from the Victoria and Albert Museum. To emphasise the need to encourage a new generation of philanthropists to engage with young artists around them, AFAC launched a challenge to the Hangar collective to match a grant by AFAC for their next year’s commission with donations from Saudi philanthropists.

AFAC Gives "Philanthropy in Arts and Culture" Master-Class

Dubai, February 20
AFAC’s executive director Oussama Rifahi was invited to Dubai by the Abu Dhabi Music and Art Foundation and the British Council to host a master-class, “Philanthropy in Arts and Culture” to the pioneers and protégés of the CEF- Cultural Excellence Fellowship program. The session explored the culture, practice and myths of ‘philanthropy’ in the arts and culture industries. While understanding the main challenges related to ‘charitable giving’, AFAC shared its knowledge and expertise around current trends and diverse approaches to the importance of developing sustainable models for the ongoing engagement and enduring endowment of the artists and creative people in our societies. Additionally, prominent UAE institutions involved in supporting the ‘arts and cultural’ communities through special programs and grants, shared their vision, priorities and approaches to strengthen the entire local ecosystem in a panel moderated by Rifahi. Those institutions included Maraya Art Centre, Community Jameel, the Sheikha Salama bint Hamdan Al Nahyan Foundation and Taskeel. In the last part of the masterclass, participants worked together on developing a cultural project proposal for a potential grant from AFAC, whereby specific criteria of selection and evaluation were applied.

AFAC Participates in the 9th Informal Donors Meeting, Marrakech

Morocco, March 10-12
The Informal Donors Meeting for Arts and Culture in the Arab Region brings together arts and culture organizations with the donors group to discuss the challenges and opportunities to working in the region today. The 2016 meeting was be held at Dar al-Ma’mûn in Marrakech (Morocco), in partnership with Racines and with the support of the Ford Foundation, Institute of International Education, Open Society Foundations, HIVOS and More Europe, with participants from regional and international donors and arts organizations. The meeting discussed supporting arts, culture and education and developing adequate policies, giving the critical role arts and culture play in maintaining the “revolution” spirit through debates on critical issues related to freedom of expression, human rights, social justice, education, religion, citizenship, solidarity, and diversity.
AFAC Participates in "Living Arts in Post-Conflict Contexts" Forum

Cambodia, March 10-12
AFAC was invited to participate in "Living Arts in Post-Conflict Contexts Forum: Practices, Partnerships, Possibilities", a three-day Forum, between 10-12th March 2016 with thought-provoking sessions and inspiring peer-to-peer dialogues for a selected group of creative actors in the fields of cultural renewal and development, youth resilience, and social innovation. Forty-five delegates from 24 countries were invited to Phnom Penh by Cambodian Living Arts, an independent NGO working toward the vision of arts for transformation. Cambodia’s arts scene has re-emerged since the restrictive Khmer Rouge regime ended 35 years ago. Holding the inaugural Living Arts in Post-Conflict Contexts Forum helped to establish Cambodia internationally as a thriving hub for the arts and as a model for the transformation of post-conflict societies through arts and culture. The Forum was a starting point for increased South-South dialogue, taking place in a setting where post-conflict transformation is a lived reality, and AFAC was able to share its experience on the topics of “Practices, Partnerships, Possibilities” from the perspective of a region still deeply entrenched into conflict.

AFAC Participates in the European Culture Forum

Brussels, April 19-20
The European Culture Forum is a biennial flagship event organised by the European Commission, aimed at raising the profile of European cultural cooperation and uniting the sector’s key players. This year’s two-day Forum reflected on culture’s contribution to the new Commission’s priorities such as innovation, jobs and growth; the digital single market; social cohesion and intercultural dialogue; and Europe’s position on the global scene.

AFAC Participates in the Arab Foundations Forum (AFF) Annual Meeting and General Assembly

Tunisia, September 8-9
AFF General Assembly and Board came together for a two-day event in Tunisia to elect new board members, vet the new membership proposals and network and discuss a number of topics. The two-day agenda comprised panels and working sessions around leadership, data & research, youth coalition, role of Arab foundations in addressing Sustainable Development Goals and the culture of giving.

AFAC Participates in the 7th World Summit on Arts and Culture 2016

Valletta - Malta, 18-21 October
At the crossroads? Cultural Leadership in the 21st Century" is the title of IFACCA’s - The International Federation of Arts Councils and Culture Agencies - 7th World Summit which brought together government and cultural leaders from over 80 countries and took place in Valletta, Malta on 18 - 21 October 2016. IFACCA is the global network of arts councils and ministries of culture, with member organisations in over 70 countries, whose vision is a world in which arts and culture thrive and are recognized by governments and peoples for their contribution to society.

Arts and culture face a number of challenges and opportunities in the 21st century as new technologies affect the production and distribution of goods and services; new patterns of migration emerge; and national contexts constantly shift with austerity measures and requests for reform. At the same time, artists and culture operators aspire to extend their impact to other sectors, while striving to ensure freedom of expression and cultural diversity. New models of cultural leadership are more important than ever as we work to affirm the arts and culture as pillars of social development. At a time when the notion of participatory governance is prevalent, no decision can be made without the involvement of multiple stakeholders, and the tradition of top-down leadership is no longer the only model. Artists, networks, advocacy groups, and professional organisations play an increasingly important role in engaging people, debating the issues, and proposing solutions to the challenges of our times. The Summit explored changing perceptions of leadership and addressed a number of questions: What are the issues? How are decisions being made, and by whom? How is leadership defined in different cultures? How can governments and civil society collaborate? And where do we go from here?

The summit included participation by several Arab speakers: Abdullah Alkafri from Ettijahat, Marina Barham of Al-Harah Theater of Palestine, and Rana Yazaji of Al-Mawred Al-Thaqafy. In the first panel, titled “What are the issues that have brought us to the crossroads?” moderated by Sarah Gardner, Executive Director IFACCA from Australia, with speakers Jane Chu, Chairperson National Endowment for the Arts, USA, Annick Schramme, President of ENC/ATC, Belgium, Carlos Javier Villaseñor Anaya, Cultural policy expert, Mexico/Panama, and Oussama Rifahi, director of AFAC, who talked about the dire conditions seen in the Arab region, and how Arts and Culture can turn the latest crisis of migration into an opportunity; he emphasized how the artistic community can modernize its message and through the universal language of culture, how radicalization, intolerance and fear can be addressed in a profound and concerted effort to rally global citizens to responsible and constructive action.
AFAC Co-Organizes Creative Lab Workshop on Arts and Culture at Impact Hub

Amsterdam, October 24-25
AFAC co-organised a workshop on 24-25 October at Impact Hub Amsterdam, together with the DOEN Foundation, the Foundation "Festival sur le Niger" and the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The title of the workshop, conducted under a peer-to-peer experimental exchange format, was titled “What is the role of arts & culture today in building understanding and social cohesion? How can our arts & culture community build continued collaborative action for positive impact?”

The two-day creative lab gathered leaders and practitioners in the arts and culture field to meet and explore: “How stories from the sector can hold the seed of the positive future we imagine and want; how it can leverage the courageous work of artists and changemakers working for social change?” Participation included a number of Dutch and international institutions as well as a number of participants from the Arab region: Omar Abi Azar from the Zoukak collective, Lebanon; Khalidun Busara from Riwaq, Palestine; Rana Yazaji from Mawred Thaqafi, Egypt; Moez Mrabet theater director from Tunisia; Menatalla El-Shazly from Medrar, Egypt; Tamara Abdul-Hadi from the Rawiya Collective.

AFAC launches "Europa: An Illustrated Introduction to Europe for Migrants and Refugees"

Berlin, December 8
"Europa" has been produced in partnership with the Arab Fund for Arts and Culture (AFAC) in the framework of the Arab European Creative Platform, Magnum Photos, Al-liquindoi, and On The Move, with support from Magnum Foundation, the Geneviève McMillan–Reba Stewart Foundation, MDIC, the Protection System for Asylum Seekers and Refugees (SPRAR), and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR); in cooperation with Allianz Cultural Foundation.

The book was initiated by a group of photographers and journalists who have been covering both the refugee crisis in Europe and many contexts across the Middle East, Asia, and Africa. Written in Arabic, Farsi, English, and French, this collaborative and independent initiative is intended as an educational tool to inform, engage, and facilitate community exchange. Europa offers an introduction to the motivations behind the creation of the European Union, how it developed, and the relevant debates that will determine its future. Through first-person testimonies, readers are also introduced the different people who make up Europe today, who in their own words tell their stories of displacement, war, solidarity, and reconciliation. "Europa" is an independent nonprofit project, and the book is not available for purchase. An electronic PDF version of the book is available on AFAC’s website as well as printed editions which were widely distributed to stakeholders working with migrants.
A communication and fundraising strategy is being developed with consultants to boost the image of the organization and its grantees; to facilitate fundraising; and to strengthen the position of AFAC as a knowledge resource. The final product will be completed mid-2017.

In 2016, the following communication material was produced, the highlight of which is the ACEF report 2015. It tells inspiring stories of impact that grantees express to demonstrate how art creates space for questioning, healing, and engagement.

- Release of the second Arab Creativity and Entrepreneurship Fund- ACEF Book 2015 highlighting 50 grantees with 14 in-depth interviews on AFAC website
- 5 grantee stories from diverse categories in pdf format on AFAC website
- 2 on-line “Grantees’ Voices” video interviews on AFAC website
- Release of AFAC’s commissioned video on Contemporary Dance in the Arab Region
- AFAC’s commissioned video to close Crossroads special program
- AFAC Novel Writing Program (ANWP) infographic summarizing the three cycles

AFAC maintains communication and accessibility to all its stakeholders – artists and cultural practitioners, patrons and donor foundations, media, critics and cultural journalists. AFAC also conducts roundtable discussions and field trips and participates in events throughout the region, allowing for direct communication and visibility with a broader spectrum of people involved in the cultural field.

Newsletters and web-news have been published throughout the year, relaying latest AFAC events and latest cultural opportunities for Arab practitioners and cultural networks across the region and internationally.
AFAC produced online the second book on Arab Creativity and Entrepreneurship Fund (ACEF) 2015. It includes 50 grantees and their projects, revealing the tremendous impact that roughly $1 million in annual contributions can make across communities in the Arab world. From projects in visual and performing arts to literature, music, film, documentary photography, research, training, and events, the ACEF-supported artists have created works that shift people’s perspectives on important matters and strengthen social and cultural cohesion, while pushing the boundaries of what is possible. Those authentic, non-agenda driven artistic ventures contribute to freedom of expression, tolerance, empowered individuals and communities, inclusive identities, civic engagement, reconciliation, and spaces for young people to imagine a better future.

In 2016, AFAC published 5 grantee stories:

1. Beirut & Beyond Music Festival - Amani Semaan (Festival Director) & Khaled Yassine (Artistic Director): Since 2012, the four-day Festival creates an independent platform for alternative expressions in music and for intercultural exchange using the universal language of music in a fragile region. Apart from showcasing local and foreign talents, the Festival is an opportunity for exposure, exchange and dialogue, presenting a nuanced image of contemporary Arab culture. In parallel to a diverse music program, the Festival includes training and discussions primarily targeting emerging artists.

2. Kulshi Makoo (Nothing Doing in Baghdad) - Maysoon Pachachi: For this filmmaker, her urgent need is to tell how people live through extraordinary and violent times in Iraq, and despite overwhelming odds, there is much that blossoms in everyday life. She chooses fiction over documentary to show the dialectic between the past and the present, between the interior and exterior, and to interweave stories of different characters each living on their own but whose stories intersect in a typically mixed Baghdadi neighbourhood.

3. Using dance to overcome social challenges – Nadia Arouri (Artistic Director), Yante Youth, Art & Levant: For community building, dance can be a tool for addressing specific social development obstacles such as inequality, exclusion, fragmentation and post-traumatic stress disorder. The program included weekly community classes in villages in Palestine involving children, women, the elderly, and those with special needs, as well as thematic performances to raise awareness and engage participants and develop their resilience - physically, emotionally, socially, and intellectually.

4. The Renaissance of Cinema in Mauritania – Abderrahmane Lahy (Director), Cinema House: In a bid to revive the collective movie-going experience known to Mauritanian society during the period 1960-1980 and reverse the clamp down on cinema in the years to follow, the Association of Filmmakers founded in 2011 was supported by AFAC to continue offering intensive training courses for young filmmakers in the provinces on the basics of cinematic arts. The films raise complex thorny issues, instigating discussion on taboo subjects. Some of the young practitioners set up small film festivals in their towns.

5. Opening Beirut’s Inaccessible and Closed Public Spaces – Ali Sabbagh (Cultural Coordinator), ASSABIL: The creation and opening of public spaces has been a major challenge since ASSABIL opened the first public library in Bachoura in 2000. The Horsh Beirut Festival included high-quality cultural activities to reach new audiences and advocate with the municipality of Beirut to open up the park to the public and not just for this annual event that attracts roughly 7000 spectators from surrounding neighbourhoods. Performances were in collaboration with Moulin Fondu, led by the Oposito Company based in Noisy-le-Sec (France), the Lebanese Collectif Kahraba and ASSABIL.
AFAC on-line "Grantees' Voices" video interviews

In addition, AFAC published 2 online video interviews under "Grantees Voices". Samar Hazboun, a grantee of ADPP from Palestine talks about "Beyond Checkpoints", a visual story about Palestinian women who are obliged to give birth at Israeli checkpoints because they are not allowed to cross and reach a hospital. Dona Timani, a grantee of visual arts from Lebanon describes how AFAC's grant supported her to make her first solo exhibition, "Vulgar Truths". Her paintings map out the inter-connectedness of daily issues arising from social injustice and prods individuals to observe how they are not just victims but often accomplices who should instead consider a shared responsibility to address these issues.

Video Stories

Two commissioned videos stories were released with compelling and touching narratives around the work of AFAC grantees which can be viewed on AFAC's website:

1. Contemporary Dance in the Arab Region: The video, "Dancing on the Edge" takes an intimate look at the rise of contemporary dance in the Arab world. The contemporary dance scene in the Middle East and North Africa has taken great strides forward. There is more public recognition of contemporary dance as an art form and as a vehicle of creative and social expression. A generation of promising and ambitious contemporary dancers is taking up dance as a means of social, political and artistic liberation; and an ever growing and diverse audience is breaking the stereotype of the traditionally elite, intellectual dance and theatre audience.

2. Commissioned video to close Crossroads special program – Filmmakers at a Crossroad: AFAC's Crossroads was launched to support Arab filmmakers to complete their cinematic projects coming out of the heart of the Arab revolutions and dealing with pressing topics. For most of the directors, this was their first experience. The personal story was the dominant feature in the films which became a laboratory for cinematic language and experimentation, but also about the relationship between dictators and the family and society. The movies highlighted individual transformations in parallel or in the background of major changes happening in the region. In 2016 and after five years, AFAC asked the directors how they look back at this experience. The video was directed by Fadi Yeni Turk – one of the program’s grantees - and features AFAC Crossroads grantees: Djemal Fawzy, Hazem Alhamwi, Sara Ishak, Bahia BenCheikh-El-Fegoun and Mohamed Rashad.

AFAC Novel Writing Program (ANWP) infographic summarizing the three cycles

With the closure of the program, AFAC produced an infographic summarizing important information gathered from the 668 received applications in the period 2014-2016. It highlighted the general themes and sub-themes of novels, reflecting what is on the mind of young Arab authors in the past three years. The biggest preoccupations were about daily life and personal stories; identity and self-discovery; and romance. This may be linked to the fact that first-time novelists tend to write about subjects closest to home. The second set of sub-themes revolved around Arab revolutions; the burden of the past; repression and torture; and religion. Given the recent quest of younger generations for change, it is not surprising that the topics pick on current upheavals and daily trials in the face of unhampered authority in many Arab societies. Tough subjects like war-torn societies; forced displacement; and youth disenchantment constituted a third pool of themes in the literary works. A few participants ventured into topics on science fiction and the impact of social media from a Novel Writing perspective; they are incidently topics that are not prevalent in the region but may be picking up. Although many in Arab societies suffer from negative categorization of homosexuality, a few have started writing about it.

AFAC Governance and Management

AFAC welcomed four new board members in 2016: writer Elias Khoury, writer and historian Farouk Mardam-Bey; Deputy Chairperson for the Middle East at Sotheby’s Roxane Zand; and AFAC’s former Executive Director, Oussama Rifahi. The Board met twice: in Beirut in May and in Berlin in October.

Lebanese intellectual, academic, and chairman of AFAC, Dr. Ghassan Salamé was named Cultural Personality of the Year of Sharjah International Book Fair’s (SIBF) 35th edition. Ahmad Bin Rakkad Ameri, chairman of Sharjah Book Authority, said, “Our selection of Dr. Salamé was based on his long and distinguished career, his invaluable contribution to the Arab cultural scene and his concern for all issues relating to the Arab world.” The SIBF’s recognition pays tribute to intellectual figures in the Arab world and celebrates their achievements that inspire future generations.

Lebanese writer, critic and Board Member of AFAC, Elias Khoury received the Katara Award in the Published Novels category for his latest work “Children of the Ghetto- My Name is Adam” published by Dar Al Adab.

Dr. Ghassan Salamé also received the Said Akl award for International Lebanese Creativity Category in a ceremony at Notre Dame University – Louaize (NDU) to commemorate the second anniversary of Said Akl’s passing.

Lebanese writer, critic and Board Member of AFAC, Elias Khoury received the Katara Award in the Published Novels category for his latest work “Children of the Ghetto- My Name is Adam” published by Dar Al Adab.

The newly appointed director is AFAC’s former Deputy Director, Rima Mismar. Four staff members moved on in 2016: communications and development, grants coordinator, project coordinator and finance officer. A new finance officer and a second grants manager were recruited in addition to a senior program manager who will focus on institutional development and new initiatives.
Finances

AFAC funding is secured through international and regional donor foundations, philanthropic donations and corporate sponsorships. AFAC’s expenditures are largely channeled directly to grants.

In August 2016, AFAC successfully secured a multi-year grant from the Open Society Foundations (OSF) for which discussions had started early 2011. In parallel, another multi-year grant was concluded with the Ford Foundation part of which is a BUILD grant that allows the organization to identify its strengths and weaknesses and prioritize its organizational strengthening needs. Moreover, the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs doubled its contribution for the years 2016 and 2017. DOEN and Prince Claus Fund continue to support AFAC for the 8th and 3rd year respectively.

A total of 17 individual donors generously contributed a total of around $1 million to AFAC:

For the past ten years, AFAC leads as a regional cultural institution having raised over $23 million, made over 980 grants totaling approximately $13.6 million, spent almost $3 million on professional training and workshops, reached millions of audiences, processed over 9000 applications and worked with around 200 jurors since making its first grant in 2007.

Below are the finances for 2016. In addition to grants, AFAC’s budget takes into account fundraising and communications for outreach efforts, field trips, cultural advocacy opportunities in addition to administrative costs. In 2017, AFAC envisages a 20% increase in the grants’ budget.
PricewaterhouseCoopers in Zurich, Switzerland successfully completed the 2016 audit. APAC’s financial statements comply with the Swiss law and the Foundation’s deed.
AFAC Ten-Year Study: Learning from the Past – Imagining the Future

To mark its 10th anniversary and transit into the second decade with a sustained significant imprint on artistic and cultural production and on the advancement of Arab philanthropy for arts and culture, AFAC initiated an evaluation process of its programs and operation as well as recommendations from the field to guide its future programs and activities.

The study’s objectives are:

1. To assess AFAC’s 10-year history of sustaining and impacting artistic and cultural production in the Arab region
2. To learn from and engage with AFAC’s stakeholders of grantees, partners and funders about their perception, understanding and analysis of the foundation’s past as well as suggestions for the future.
3. To highlight and present AFAC’s strengths and weaknesses as well propose future steps and initiatives that will ensure the sustainability, growth and impact of the foundation for the coming years.

Moukhtar Kocache, an independent advisor researched and recommended priorities that AFAC can explore moving forward. In parallel, a Study Group of 5 professionals (Rasha Salti, curator and writer; Orwa Nayrabia, film producer; Tarek Abou el Foutouh, curator; Khyyam Al Lami, music composer; and Elias Khoury, writer and AFAC Board Member engaged with AFAC on an in-depth discussion about the initial findings of the study as well as the state of arts and culture in the region and reflected on AFAC’s role in the coming five years. Suggestions included new areas to be supported, as well as amendments to the granting and selection processes.

The draft study report included feedback from all AFAC stakeholders (grantees, jurors, board members, donors) in addition to professionals in the field of arts and culture who reflected on the different aspects of AFAC activities.

Process

The Study Group met in AFAC offices in Beirut on August 22-23 to discuss the preliminary findings of the study. Moderated by Kocache and attended by the whole AFAC team, the two-day discussion presented preliminary findings based on the survey and one-on-one interviews which Kocache led and tackled areas of grant-making; pre-selection, selection and evaluation processes; future special programs; expansion of AFAC beyond core grant-making activity; areas of support; positioning of AFAC as source of knowledge production and research initiator.

Kocache collected feedback, recommendations and suggestions to include in the final report along with the results of the survey and interviews. After feedback from the Board and group, and internal discussions, a final report was provided and will be shared with the community at large early 2017. It will shed light on AFAC’s visibility and identity, organizational development and internal processes in addition to programs, with recommendations for the next years.

The evaluation process will continue with focus groups for each category to delve deeper into the report’s recommendations. Based on the discussions and findings, AFAC will communicate a new strategy end 2017.

Legal status

AFAC is registered in Lebanon under decree 6388 dated 24 September 2011 as the Lebanese branch of the foundation AFAC, registered in Zug, Switzerland on 23 June 2006, under article 80 of the Swiss Civil Code. Previously, AFAC was registered in Jordan as the Jordanian branch of the foundation AFAC, under registration number 2099, dated 11 April 2007.
• Share the ten-year study of AFAC and start implementing recommendations following in-depth consultations with practitioners. Focus groups will be formed with experts in each category to draw practical recommendations based on a thorough reading of trends and priorities in the region.
• Celebrate ten years of AFAC in 2017 with a major event that pays tribute to grantees, jurors and philanthropists, and captures the knowledge of the arts and culture scene.
• Deepen outreach to marginalized communities of artists, beyond capital cities through tailored field visits and better dissemination of artistic products.
• Implement activities under the Arab-European Creative Platform – the newly launched program to address Arab migrant artists and those in exile. 2017 project activities will focus on a series of cultural workshops and panels in Germany, including a symposium on writing and migration, a theatre performance, and artistic workshops covering photography, visual arts and cinema for emerging artists in exile.
• Build on the experience of the Arab Writing Novel Program to open a new grant program. AFAC will consider specific needs in this field such as critical writing and research; children and youth literature; and playwriting.
• Launch the 4th edition of AFAC Film Week in Tangier, London (under the aegis of Shubak) and Berlin in 2017, building on the success of AFAC Film Week in Beirut, Cairo, Tunis and New York City.
• Increase awareness and mobilise philanthropy for arts and culture in the Arab region to expand and diversify donor support. AFAC will continue to encourage individual contributors in arts and culture through ACEF with the aim of raising another $1 million for 2017.
• Develop and facilitate a community of practice platform to engage current grantees and alumni in bi-annual thematic discussions on arts and culture.
• Envisage an increase of 20% in the 2017 grants’ budget.

Country: Lebanon
Title: Sculptor in a Bedouin Tent
Synopsis: The Atelier of Youssef Ebbo (1888-1953) was a renowned meeting point for artists and writers in Berlin during the twenties. This project will aim at recreating this physical space in order to revive this vital period of time and establish a place for experimentation for contemporary artists. Youssef Ebbo’s name was associated with the most famous art dealers, poets and artists of the period, he however died poor and unknown in London. The project and associated exhibition will re-introduce this important Levantine artist who fell into oblivion to the public again.
Throughout this journey, an intangible sense of unease seems to lurk underneath the city’s ground and the claddings of its architecture. The project aims to reflect on contemporary migration, through the maqams of so-called Oriental music.

Synopsis: The project researches, with three different methodologies, the influences of nature, economy and culture on life of Dakar, but is also related to the Arab World as a whole. The project is an intervention in public space resulting in an installation and video documentation. All three methodologies question traditional practices and the spiritual facing materialization and capitalism in the Arab region with Dakar - Senegal as a laboratory.

Title: Becoming Authentic
Name: Khalil Sakakini Cultural Center
Country: Palestine

Synopsis: The project is an exhibition during Qalandia International 2016 that invites practitioners from different disciplines to collaborate in thinking through what it means to be indigenous. The exhibition takes as its starting point the theme of return proposed by this year’s Qalandia International Biennial. One is compelled to ask the question: what does it mean to return to the land? Is this return symbolic? Is it a return of the real? The project and exhibition will be to approach those questions through exploring the relationship with nature as natives, what it means for plants to return, what is native to the land.

Title: Not Every Day is Spring
Name: Haig Aivazian
Country: Lebanon

Synopsis: A ghostly journey through the key sites of music production and broadcast in Istanbul produces a series of intimate, and sometimes surreal musical encounters. Throughout this journey, an intangible sense of unease seems to lurk underneath the city’s ground and the claddings of its architecture. The project aims to reflect on contemporary migration, through the maqams of so-called Oriental music.

Synopsis: Portraits (Ourselves) is the first solo exhibition by Hassan Khan in Beirut, expanding on the thematic of the International Biennial. One is compelled to ask the question: What does it mean to return to the land? Is this return symbolic? Is it a return of the real? The project and exhibition will be to approach those questions through exploring the relationship with nature as natives, what it means for plants to return, what is native to the land.

Title: The Portrait is an Address
Name: Beirut Art Center
Country: Lebanon

Synopsis: Portraits (Ourselves) is the first solo exhibition by Hassan Khan in Beirut, expanding on the thematic of the portrait in his work. The portrait has played a pivotal role in Khan’s work starting with “100 Portraits” (2001) and is represented in various media such as moving images, photographic images, text pieces etc. The exhibition aims to explore the primal relation between how we conceive of a self and its reproduction, which is not merely a representation. It proposes the portrait as genre, approach, and form, as a trace of mortality, to remember, to prevent disappearance. This exhibition grapples with the possibility of intimacy, the gaps and losses that are necessary for us to make sense of what we see and what we know, the very possibility of making sense itself. It also simply gives the audience a chance to look at others and themselves in a direct, accessible and emotionally powerful way.

Synopsis: “Emergence of Singularities” is the first major exhibition outside Sudan of contemporary Sudanese art. It will showcase in the heart of London Kings Cross nearly 30 established and emerging artists, writers and intellectuals as well as special guests whose works are related to Sudan.

Title: Each Fighting its Own Little Battle in Happy Ignorance
Name: P21 Gallery
Country: United Kingdom

Synopsis: “Parts”, a new film by British artist Maeve Brennan, examines shifting economies of objects in contemporary Lebanon within the wider historical and political context of the Middle East. Combining documentary footage with staged cinematic scenes, “Parts” documents a self-taught archaeologist and a joyrider carrying out processes of maintenance and repair. The project will be presented as a large-scale single screen video installation within major solo exhibitions.

Khalil Joreige
Khalil Joreige collaborates with Joana Hadjithomas as filmmakers and artists, producing cinematic and visual artwork that intertwine. For more than fifteen years, they have focused on the images, representations, and writing of history of their home country, Lebanon, questioning the fabrication of imaginaries in the region and beyond.
Together, they have directed multi awarded documentaries and feature films such “A Perfect Day” (2005) and “Je Veux Voir” (I Want to See), starring Catherine Deneuve and Rabih Mroué, premiered at the official selection of the Cannes Film Festival in 2008 and was chosen by the French Critics Guild as the Best Film 2008. In 2013, they presented their feature documentary “The Lebanese Rocket Society”, the strange tale of the Lebanese space race and a series of artistic installations around the space project of the 1960s. Lately they have focused on spams and scams and the virtuality of internet. Their artwork, part of major private and public collections is extensively shown in solo and group shows in museums, biennials and art centers around the world.

Shurooq Amin
Born to a Kuwaiti father and Syrian mother, Shurooq Amin is a mixed-media interdisciplinary artist and an Anglophone poet whose purpose is to instigate change in society. She has a PhD in Ekphrasis, the connection between art and poetry, and has been published and anthologized internationally. She has been a guest speaker at various universities and a judge for various events. Shurooq has had 14 solo exhibitions, more than 45 group exhibitions, her paintings have been sold at auctions, commissioned privately and publicly, awarded prizes locally and internationally, and shown at biennales and art fairs. A retrospective of her work was featured in the biannual art journal Contemporary Practices: Visual Arts from the Middle East. Shurooq’s poetry has been published into two books to date, in more than 40 literary journals across the globe, and has been anthologized in the Gathering the Tide. She is the first Kuwaiti to be nominated for the prestigious Pushcart Prize in December 2007 in the USA. In 2012 she was nominated as one of Kuwait’s 46 Inspirational People in Sheikha Intisar Al-Sabah’s book The Alchemy of Wisdom. Shurooq was the first Kuwaiti female artist to show her work at the Venice Biennale (56th International Venice Biennale, Italy; May to November 2015).

Najlaa El Ageli
She is a UK-Registered Chartered Architect, having completed the Royal Institute of British Architects (RIBA) Levels I, II and III with over twenty years of experience in the profession. Fully bilingual in English and Arabic, she is also passionate about Art and travels and always seeks to learn more from different cultures. Argentina, West Africa, the United Arab Emirates, Egypt, the United States and Japan are just a few of the countries she have visited and when in Egypt and Japan she worked with local communities offering sustainable development programs. Due to her deep interest in Art and the need to explore and discover its potential, she recently founded Noon Arts, a private organization that curates the very best of contemporary Libyan art and bringing the works of both emerging and established Libyan artists to the world stage. So far, she have successfully curated eight international exhibitions in London, Malta, Tripoli and California, with the latest currently taking place this July 2015 at the Arab British Centre venue in London. Noon Arts was also recently commissioned by the Benetton Foundation in Italy to complete the Libyan Art catalogue for the Imago Mundi global Art project, a great measure of Noon Arts’ success.
“I believe the women can use the skills and confidence they have acquired from this project to find other work in the artistic field. One of the cast members went on to audition for a BBC radio drama and was successful in getting the part. Another was inspired to produce her own theater project. I also hope that creative projects such as this will slowly shift misogynistic attitudes in the Arab world.”

Project Descriptions

Name: Chrystèle Khodr
Country: Lebanon
Title: Temporary Title
Synopsis: A theater project that explores the history of immigration in The Levant (Al-Mashreq) since 1915, through the history of a family, none of whose members were born and died in the same country over the course of 100 years. The performance is based on a cassette tape sent by a man in Sweden to his brother in Lebanon in 1976 at the beginning of the Lebanese Civil War. The project moves from the personal to the public and aims to rewrite a history that has been repeated for 100 years, through two perspectives: One that is reconciled with the idea of immigration, and another which experiences it in a reductive manner, as if the story takes place concurrently here and there.

Name: Ali Chahrour
Country: Lebanon
Title: Men of the Land of Fire
Synopsis: This is a dance performance that invokes the presence of men in mourning rituals, and deals with the concept of inherited modern masculinity with all the authoritarian, social, and political connotations that it carries. The project explores its topic via the concept of Land of Fire, with its religious dimensions related to hell and punishment in the afterlife, as well as the concept of Burnt Land with its war-related political dimension and the ends and beginnings it leads to.

Name: Nancy Naous
Country: Lebanon
Title: Title Under Consideration
Synopsis: This performance explores the structure, components and concept of masculinity in contemporary societies in a performance by two male dancers, in the framework of a choreography that combines the popular/traditional/oriental with the contemporary. The project builds on a physical vocabulary of the masculine combining stereotypes and clichés that we usually adhere to when we talk about masculinity in general.
Name: Youness Atbane
Country: Morocco
Title: The Architects
Synopsis: This project questions the relation between dreams and the material world from a philosophical perspective. In this work, the performers enter a “World of Things” and endeavor to create a space where language, movement, and images exist outside the usual logical framework, and become capable of interaction, building a philosophical dream machine. The idea is to create a ready-to-test environment, an environment built for experimenting.

Name: Rochdi Belgasmi
Country: Tunisia
Title: Ouled Jelaba ... On His Footsteps, I Dance ...
Synopsis: Ouled Jalaba is a known figure in the world of popular arts in Tunisia but, paradoxically, little known among Tunisians. He appeared in the 20s in Bab Souika in Tunis and worked in the singing café “Sallit Dziri”. He was much demanded by the public of the medina, which ignored in most time his sexual identity. He, and other transvestites’ dancers were no longer capable of practicing their art once women had the right to dance in public café, with the resistance and women’s liberation movement in Tunisia. The project is a dance in tribute to figures of folk dancers, less known or which have fallen into oblivion or have been discarded and rejected by the society, such as Ouled Jaleba.

Name: Ahmed Tobasi
Country: Palestine
Title: And Here I Am
Synopsis: Written by award winning writer Hassan Abdulrazzak and based on Ahmed Tobasi’s personal coming of age story, this brand new production is an epic voyage through identity and self-discovery that combines tragedy and comedy, taking us through two intifadas, the transformation of Tobasi from resistance fighter to artist and from life as a refugee in Palestine, then Norway and back again.

Name: Lina Issa
Country: Lebanon
Title: Ticket to Atlantis
Synopsis: The project consists of a live performance and audiovisual installation about the relation between human beings and their bodies and the sea, within a sensory and historical framework. The performers will share with their audience a journey in search of lightness. The performance starts with the experiences and images of migrants as a contemporary reality, and asks: What happens when we associate the obsession of searching for a safe place with the myth of Atlantis, the utopian city lost in the sea? This will be a joint work by Lina Issa from Lebanon, and actor and theater director Meyar Alkasan from Syria.
Name: Wael Kadour
Country: Syria
Title: The Confession
Synopsis: The project is a theater performance written by Wael Kadour and directed by Addullah Al-Kafri. The project contrasts the concepts of violence and forgiveness in the context of the change of the revolution from the peaceful to the armed, and by comparing current events with the eighties of the last century. The project reflects on the trivialization of death and the constant return to the past, technically and dramatically, in order to contemplate the present and reflect upon it.

Oussama Hallal
Born in Damascus in 1979, Oussama started his artistic career as a Hip Hop dancer and trainer from 1994 till 2000. He graduated from the Acting Department of the 'Higher Institute of Theatrical Arts' in Damascus in 2004. In 2001, he founded the theatrical group "Kawn", which participated in several workshops and artistic residencies, most notably with 'Odin Theater' in Copenhagen, 'Dream Think Speak' and 'Grid Iron' from Britain, 'Opus' from France, and 'Teatri Del Vento' from Sicily. To date, he has directed 10 theater shows with the group "Kawn", ranging from Street Theater to Site-specific Theater and experimental performances. His works were showcased in Arabic and international festivals, such as 'Fawanees' in Jordan, 'Cairo International Experimental Theatre Festival', and 'Dancing on the Edge' in Denmark. In 2013, he moved to Beirut, where he continues to work on his theatrical projects. He has also worked as an actor in television series and short films.

Carlos Chahine
Carlos Chahine is an actor and director born in Lebanon. After obtaining a degree as a dental surgeon, which he never put into practice, Chahine discovered theater in Paris with Vera Gregh, who encouraged him to begin acting. Thus, he took courses at ENSAD (école nationale d’art dramatique) in TNS (théâtre national de Strasbourg) with group 23, from 1985 to 1988. After having worked exclusively in France and in Europe with many directors, such as Michel Vinaver, Matthias Langhoff, Sylviu Pircarete, Alain Françon, René Loyon, Viviane Théophrilidis, Stuart Seide, Philippe Van Kessel, Christian Rist, etc., he made a comeback to Lebanon thanks to Ghassan Salhab, with whom he made three films. In 2008, he wrote, directed and acted in his first short film "The North Road". The film received many international awards, including Best Narrative Short Award at the Tribeca Film Festival in 2009. He directed two plays in Beirut these last two years, "Carnage" by Yasmina Reza and "The cherry orchard" by Tchékhov and he just finished an essay documentary, which he wrote and shot last summer, "Tchekhov in Beirut", a personal and intimate project about exile and childhood.

Sulayman Al Bassam
Born in Kuwait in 1972, Sulayman Al Bassam is widely recognized as one of the world’s leading contemporary Arab theatre makers. Al Bassam’s work explores themes of identity with a focus on the interstitial spaces between the Arab-Islamic world and the West, initiating new literary, historical, geo-political and imagined contexts through theatrical process. Collaborating with multinational performers, creative partners, and technical teams, Al Bassam’s productions are characterized by a radical approach to text, bold production styles and playful, provocative combinations of content and form. Writing in English and directing theatre in Arabic, English and French, Al Bassam has presented his creations at leading international venues across the world including the Brooklyn Academy of Music (USA), The Holland Festival (EU), and Tokyo International Festival (Japan).
Al Bassam regularly acts as a juror on international arts grant-making bodies, including the Rolex Mentor Program and the Arab Fund for Arts and Culture. In 2015, Al Bassam was commissioned by Le Festival des Ecrivains du Monde, a literary festival hosted by Columbia University, and the Bibliothèque Nationale de France to write an adaptation of the ancient Sumerian lamentation for the destruction of the City of Ur.

Music Project Descriptions

Name: Yacine Boulares
Country: Tunisia
Title: Suite for Abu Sadiya
Synopsis: This project is an attempt to explore the forgotten Stambeli music through a jazz perspective, by composing and recording original music. Stambeli is a healing music created by slaves brought to Tunisia. The project is inspired by Abu Sadiya who, according to the legend, was a sub-Saharan hunter whose only daughter was taken into slavery and brought to Tunisia. In his search for her, he danced and sang his sorrow in Tunis, becoming the first musician of Stambeli, thus personifying the memory of slaves in Tunisia.

Name: Youssra El Hawary
Country: Egypt
Title: Youssra El Hawary First Album
Synopsis: After making music, writing songs, putting lyrics to tunes and playing concerts for the past four years, Youssra El Hawary and his band decided to take another step along the road of making music outside of the commercial production mode, and record their first album, with 10 of their newest productions.

Name: Mahmoud Abu Wardeh
Country: Palestine
Title: Arabic Songs for Classical Guitar
Synopsis: The publication is aimed at young people eager to learn classical guitar and comprises 30 Arabic compositions suited for classical guitar. The compositions are culled from the Arab and Palestinian heritages and are arranged musically and academically without breaking away from the classical guitar’s techniques. The compositions are meant to be playful for the Arab student and promote culture in the young Arab student by blending Arabic music with the classical style through the use of the classical guitar.

Name: Mohamed Aziz Mraihi
Country: Tunisia
Title: Amine & Hamza – The Band beyond Borders
Synopsis: The project “The Band Beyond Border” is a true concentrate of fertile paradoxes, bringing mastery of the millenary instruments in junction with a subversive occidental harmony, drawing upon different world cultures from jazz composition and writing to rich Mediterranean grooves. The music is nourished from Arabic musical lyricism, multicultural influences including jazz, flamenco and western classical music. This project is built on original instrumental compositions, integrating a sophisticated western harmony system that adds a deeper emotional perspective to the melody. The album brings forth sonorities that revive instrumental Arabic music in pace with its contemporaneity.
Name: Firas Hassan
Country: Syria
Title: Rhythms
Synopsis: Iqa’at is a project that sheds light on both Arabic and indigenous people’s percussive instruments, which can be simple, composite and complex and are not widespread in current commercial music. It aims to show yet another beautiful aspect of Arabic music. The project will publish a digital music album of 8 tracks that encompasses different percussions through different melodies in Arabic maqams combining 5 different instruments such as percussion, oud, qanoon, violin, bass as well as other instruments used in other compositions.

Name: Ayyad Khalifeh
Country: Lebanon
Title: Soobya
Synopsis: Soobya is a music album written for 5 instruments: piano, cello, contrabass, drums, tabla and raq. The record aspires to be a blend of Western and Oriental musical cultures, combining Arabic music with Western musical techniques such as classical, jazz, improvisation and traditional music. The compositions in their musical style and melodic colors - especially with the presence of the cello, an instrument able to express the soul of Oriental music and its maqams - are inspired by the impressionistic photo of a “soobya”, reminding us of the warmth of the village.

Name: Gilbert Mansour
Country: Lebanon
Title: Journey
Synopsis: Music is a way of communication that knows no barrier of language. This project aims to diffuse Arabic music in Western regions through Arab refugees, and to create a fusion of Arabic and non-Arabic music as a communication bridge among people of different cultures. It will be executed between Spain, USA and Lebanon in collaboration with musicians of different origins, offering to the public an album and a series of performances.

Name: Cherif El-Masri
Country: Egypt
Title: The Wheel
Synopsis: Recording of a long form electro-acoustic composition, utilizing modern analog sound design and synthesis, field recordings, and a variety of instruments (Vocals, Microtonal / Fretless Guitar, Oud, Electric Bass, Electronic & Acoustic Percussion, Wind/Reed Instruments, Violin, Synthesizer). To culminate in live performances, and an album release.

Name: Malika Zarra
Country: Morocco
Title: R’wa
Synopsis: Recording a CD with musicians coming from the three continents of Africa, Europe and America uniting to create unique music and sound that will enhance and enrich their commonalities. This project will explore the heritage of traditional Moroccan music, demonstrate and elevate the diversity of the Moroccan traditional music, empower women and explore the common points between the three continents.
Name: Tareq Rantisi
Country: Palestine
Title: The Kuwaiti World Jazz Experiment
Synopsis: Tareq Rantisi has always been attracted by music that is based on complex rhythmic traditions. With this project, he endeavors to conduct research in Sawt and Bahri music that will result in an online booklet/catalogue of the percussion instruments and rhythms with photographs, audio & videos. This will be followed by recording a music album that introduces modern arrangements of traditional Kuwaiti songs fused with world jazz music, using western instruments, harmonies, and rhythmic concepts.

Name: Ibrahim Alghaffari
Country: Yemen
Title: Kabreet Second Album Production 2017
Synopsis: Kabreet is a German-Yemini music duo that combines Arabic lyrics with percussion based and synth heavy music, transcending notions of “Eastern” and “Western” pop music. The challenge of this project will be to create music that will contribute something new to contemporary pop music, not only question stereotypes and preconceptions, but also appeal to a larger public. This album will be second to “Momken Bokra”.

Name: Emel Mathlouthi
Country: Tunisia
Title: Insan
Synopsis: “Insan (Human) is a new album that voices human stories, which are multi-faceted, often fragile and heavy, other times difficult, bright and gloomy. The record is a deep look into identity and the human’s different aspects: his weakness and madness, his power and sadness, his fall, evil, good, darkness and light. The music in this album is an attempt to build bridges made of strong Berber and Tunisian melodies as well as bridges made off percussions from North Africa. The guembri and other Tunisian Bendirs are mixed with electronica and are distorted and transformed to produce an enveloping ecstasy in a musical genre never heard before.

Name: Ashraf Kateb
Country: Syria
Title: Arabic Sonatas
Synopsis: Arabic Sonatas is a project aimed at recording 9 sonatas for violin and piano by Syrian, Egyptian, Lebanese, Moroccan and Jordanian composers. There is an emergence of Arab composers who are not originally from Europe but who have benefited from its culture and have written compositions inspired from the depths of the cultures they belong to while using “Western” models. The sonata is a perfect model that complements the merging of different cultures. From thereon, the project was created to record these works on a double CD and will be released in Beirut.

Name: Nizar Rohana
Country: Palestine
Title: Nizar Rohana Album
Synopsis: This album seeks to create a true musical dialogue between two cultures, asking for thorough understanding of each other’s cultural language. Not just the superficial sound, the general meaning, but a real interest, curiosity and research of the finest details, nuances and rhetoric of musical language, essential to create something new – something that enhances the qualities of both worlds instead of diminishing it to platitudes and stereotypes. The album and its music is the fruit of the collaboration between five distinguished musicians from the Arab region and the Netherlands.

Name: Mouhannad Nasser
Country: Syria
Title: Voyage without Borders – Oumi Ensemble Album
Synopsis: The album aims to express music beyond cultural borders and uses oud, flute, shinobue (Japanese bamboo flute), riqq, durbakeh, frame drum, cajon, and double bass. It is a journey through music to discover new horizons, encounters and connections. Equipped with virtuosic skills on their instruments, Oumi Ensemble believes in an open approach to its musical traditions and fearlessly fuse them with classical, jazz and many more influences into a unique style: sweepingly fast paced, sweetly melodic, and passionately improvised.
Name: Hasan Hujari
Country: Bahrain
Title: Symphonies of the Self: Majeed Marhoon Music Preservation Project
Synopsis: An archival project to preserve and distribute the musical compositions of late Bahraini maverick composer Majeed Marhoon (1945-2010). Majeed Marhoon was a Bahraini composer, saxophone player and musicologist, most famously known for being a self-taught composer (he had taught himself to compose while serving a 22 years prison sentence for his involvement in a pro-independence group in Bahrain). This project is the third and final stage of Hasan Hujairi’s “Symphonies of the Self” which included a concert series and documentary dedicated to Majeed Marhoon.

Name: Ayman Boujlida
Country: Tunisia
Title: Ibn Khalidoun Rhapsody
Synopsis: It has been always difficult to advance Arabic folk music to become a recognized world music style and challenging to play it with western influences such as Jazz and classical music. This project will explore those challenges and give them new direction. The project is the fruit of several years of traveling and learning new cultures, namely Arabic, Indian and Jazz, and is a presentation of how Arabic music can be played by any type of musician, be it Jazz American, Latin South American or traditional Balkan musician from Kosovo (the case for this project). The album will be recorded in New York.

Name: Wassim Halal
Country: Lebanon
Title: Le Bal des Embryons
Synopsis: Recording of Wassim Halal’s first Solo Album of Darbuka, Daf & Bendir and exploring rhythms and sounds of Arabic percussions in a contemporary way through compositions and improvisations. The album is divided into several “Litanies” using disrupted polyrhythms, voices and percussions. Some pieces are played Solo - others with Arabic popular and contemporary musicians from Lebanon and Egypt.

Name: Khyam Allami
Country: Iraq
Title: Kawalees
Synopsis: A multi-instrumental, multi-disciplinary and cross-genre musical work & live performance exploring the labyrinth of a schizophrenic musical mind. The project explores the Kawalees (backstage/corridors and pathways/labyrinth) of a mind that is consistently attempting to balance the individual with the collective, the personal with the communal.

Name: Mustafa Said
Country: Egypt
Title: Abul’Ala Al-Ma’arri
Synopsis: The project tackles musically the complete works of philosopher Abu Al Alaa’ AL Ma’arri who later influenced humanist thought. The purpose is to produce a contemporary musical work with The Asil Ensemble for contemporary classical Arabic music. One part will be sung in Arabic in addition to contemporary instrumental parts inspired by a hypothetical dialogue between Abi Al Alaa’ and Dante.

Name: Al Kamandjâti Association
Country: Palestine
Title: Musical Journey Festival
Synopsis: Al Kamandjâti association organizes its international festival in spring 2017 dedicated to sacred, spiritual and traditional music. The theme is based on the belief that the time has come to broaden people’s understanding of Palestine (with a focus on Jerusalem), and to give its music world a greater sense of universality by welcoming other cultures.

Name: Irtijal
Country: Lebanon
Title: Electronic music workshop and performances with EMS (Sweden)

Maryam Saleh
A major creative force and a powerful voice for her generation, Egyptian singer and songwriter Maryam Saleh composes and performs music that is personal, political and philosophical; intense, intelligent Egyptian music with Arabic language and influences of Trip Hop and Psych Rock. In the past few years, Maryam has played widely across Egypt, the Arab World, and Europe, after releasing her debut album Mesh Baghanny (eka3 2012), after which she joined forces with Lebanese electro-pop pioneer Zeid Hamdan in releasing Halawella (Mostakell 2015).

Following successful collaborations with a number of bands and music projects, including the BarakA band, with whom she blended rock music with Sheikh Imam’s songs, Maryam has forged a path as a solo artist, recording and performing her own projects and collaborations. Using her muscular, alluring vocals and charismatic stage presence, Maryam brings her inventive contemporary compositions to life. This charisma has been enriched by her participation in many acting roles as well, in Independent and mainstream Egyptian Films and TV Series, including Ein Shams (2006), Akher Ayam El Madina, Bel Alwan El Tabeya (2008), Farah Layla Series (2013), among others.

Toufic Farroukh
The saxophone player and composer Toufic Farroukh has chosen jazz as his favourite idiom - a jazz with the colours of the Orient, to reflect his career as an artist with his roots in two cultures, and one who is open to all the different forms of artistic expression in contemporary society, particularly dance, theatre and the cinema.

A saxophonist since an early age, Toufic studied music at the Ecole Normale Supérieure de Paris, and today he collaborates regularly as a composer with the department of modern dance at the Paris Conservatory (CRR).

Toufic Farroukh has also composed the music for several films and documentaries about his homeland, and has appeared as saxophonist on several albums of well-known artists. (Fayrouz). For his own albums, he leaves all theoretical dogma aside, assuming instead the various influences at work in his life, and from there going on to create in a strikingly tranquil manner his own utterly authentic universe.

Issa Boulos
Issa Boulos holds a bachelor’s degree in music composition from Columbia College and a master’s degree from Roosevelt University. He is the Harper College Community Music and Arts Center program coordinator, Chicago World Music Ensemble director and Issa Boulos Ensemble founder. Boulos composes for internationally-acclaimed orchestras, chamber groups, and ensembles including the Chicago Symphony, Qatar Philharmonic, Youth Symphony of Bremen, Athens Symphony, Palestine National Orchestra and Silk Road Ensemble. Many documentaries feature his original scores, including the award-winning “Nice Bombs” and PBS’s “The New Americans.” He performs and lectures at institutions and universities around the world. As researcher, Boulos fosters understanding about world music. He received awards from the Illinois Arts Council, the A. J. Racy Fellowship for Studies in Ethnomusicology, and the Norwegian Fund for newly composed works. He was previously a lecturer at the University of Chicago and the Head of Music at the Qatar Music Academy.
“Now that we have opened up these files, other people are inspired to look at them too. And frankly, it has often felt like we are being guided by ghosts and phantoms. It wants to be remembered.”

“Our bodies carry our histories, both personal and collective. Our bodies are also where we feel bound. Dancing is freedom and also connection. It is a desperate situation and I know art is not going to save the world. But it makes a difference. It is important because it defies the horrifying situations that surround us.”

Project: Leaving Home
Country: Egypt
Synopsis: This is the story of Amjad, a young man in his late twenties, a photographer working for a news website, and dreams of a photography project that portrays what he called the “melancholy of women”, for as he sees it, a sad woman is a beautiful one as she’s had her share of experience in life. Amjad liked experiencing an emotional bond with every woman he portrayed, which would of course end up with them having sex. Although these experiences were passionate, but they never came close to ‘love’, for as he liked to say, he wanted to experience and remain free. But during the covering of the Rabea’ event, Amjad gets shot and loses complete sight in his left eye, only for his doctor to tell him his right eye will gradually weaken to complete blindness, and with that a new phase of his life begins.

Project: Sons of Mimosa
Country: Tunisia
Synopsis: This is the story of two Tunisian brothers, Habib and Noureddine, who immigrated to the United States in the seventies. On the surface the you would think the story is about Habib, the older brother who immigrated to America after a series of coincidences that begin in Paris and go on to Chicago in the seventies, when in fact this story is Tunisia. This story is about Habib, but it’s also about his brother Noureddine who joined him in America, only to disappear after less than a year for a reason that remains unknown. Where they separated because of a woman or because of Palestine? Did Noureddine disappear because of a mysterious murder? Was he the murderer or the victim? A series of intertwined events that Jihan, Habib’s daughter, tries to narrate.

Jabbour Douaihy is a Lebanese novelist, born in Zghorta, in North Lebanon. He earned a bachelor degree in French Literature at the College of Education in Beirut, then a doctoral degree in Comparative Literature from the University of Paris III (Nouvelle Sorbonne). He has retired from university teaching at the Lebanese University where he used to be a Professor of French Literature. He used to be an editorial writer for the Beirut-based daily, L'Orient Express and a literary critic for the L'Orient Littéraire, a literary supplement. Douaihy has translated several literary and general works from French into Arabic. His own work has been translated to French, English, Italian and German. Two of his novels were on the short list of the International Prize of Arabic Fiction: "June Rain" (2008) and "The Vagrant" (2012). His novel "The American Neighborhood" was on the long list for the same prize in 2015. Douaihy has published a series of novels, "Moderation of Autumn" (1995); "Rayya of the River" (1998); "Rose Fountain" (2002), "June Rain" (2006), "Chased Away" (2006) and "The American Neighborhood" (2013). In addition to a compilation of short stories "Death Among Family is Sleepiness" (1990), and a children’s story "Spirit of the Jungle", written in French (2001).
“The question of identity is thorny and complex. In my opinion, it relies on the demolishing of a single identity, allowing multiple identities to evolve and emerge. In my work I research in the contradiction between individual identity — nurtured by the neoliberal project, marketing individual success as the only solution to the crisis of society — and the collective identity which is currently in crisis and unable to shape a public opinion capable of a liberation project.”

Tarek Al-Ghoussein (Kuwaiti)
Tarek Al Ghossein is an artist and Professor of Visual Art with New York University in Abu Dhabi. As a Kuwaiti of Palestinian origin, much of Al-Ghoussein’s professional work deals with how his identity is shaped in a context of inaccessibility and loss. His work explores the boundaries between landscape photography, self-portraiture and performance art. Choosing locations much in the same way a film director does, he moves between abstraction and the specific circumstances found in particular places. Relying on subtle interventions and non-invasive interactions, the images consider various aspects of “identity”.

Project: 194. Us, Children of the Camp
Director: Samer Abu Qatmeh (Palestine)
The film follows the director’s journey as he is forced to join the Palestinian Liberation Army in Syria only a month before the start of the Syrian uprising. The thread develops between the army and the camp, as the director and his friends attempt to document the hopes, struggles, departures and loss they experience.
Project: Last Men in Aleppo
Director: Feras Fayad (Syria)
Producer: Søren Steen Jespersen
Synopsis: After 5 years of war, the remaining citizens of Aleppo are preparing themselves to come under siege. Through the volunteers from The White Helmets, the film tells a personal story about their daily life, death and struggle to keep the streets a place possible to live in. They fight for sanity where war has become the norm.
Project: We are not Princesses
Director: Etab Azzam and Bridgette Auger (Syria)
Synopsis: The ancient Greek heroine Antigone inspires a group of Syrian women living in Beirut’s refugee camps to wonder whether new joys and ambitions are possible to conceive. The film captures the women’s identification with a story that transcends time and circumstance. Audacious and feisty, Antigone motivates each of these women to rediscover their own strength and face their own Creon.
Project: A Comedian in a Syrian Tragedy
Director: Rami Farah (Syria)
Synopsis: The film is a chronicle of an uprising and of exile. In the midst of the early months of the Syrian revolution, the director decides to follow the Syrian actor Fares Helou for years with his camera. “A Comedian in a Syrian Tragedy” is an intimate observation of the absurdity of (exiled) existence.
Project: Suspended Wives

Director: Merieme Addou (Morocco)

Synopsis: The film follows three women who were abandoned by their husbands - Ghita, Latifa, and Karima - and their long fight for divorce. After waiting for years, they decide to turn to the courts of their regions. The procedure proves to be not only a long but also an absurd one as the women have to prove first that their husbands are absent.

AFAC Film Week

Tunis and Carthage May 25- June 1st

Since AFAC’s inception in 2007, over 150 film projects have benefited from AFAC’s support, a significant mass in the region’s landscape of independent cinema production. And yet, Arab audiences are largely out of the picture, as most films enter the festival circuits and then disappear into oblivion. Filmmakers spend years of toil and creativity to produce their cinematic productions, only to be offered disappointing limited opportunities for viewerhip. Their voices are left unheard and they are unable to connect with their natural audiences, despite the real efforts taking place, from individuals and local film organizations alike, in seeking out traditional and alternative means of film distribution.

In 2014, AFAC Film Week was launched to offer a modest compensation for the general lack of distribution and visibility available for independent Arab film productions. It aims to be a traveling exhibition showcasing contemporary award-winning AFAC-supported films for Arab audiences in the presence of their directors for deeper engagement with the themes and the creative processes presented in each film.

AFAC launched its first AFAC Film Week in Beirut, in collaboration with Metropolis Cinema, screening 11 films produced between the years 2012 and 2014 – all of which had received international recognition in festivals and none of which had been screened in Beirut before. Their directors were flown in to Beirut to engage directly with the audiences and the halls were open to the public free of charge. Press and media were also activated with several media outlets in print, radio and television. Metropolis Cinema was vibrant the whole week of AFW with audience and press, despite the tense political situation in the city at the time.

Attendees at the AFAC Film Week included general public, journalists, film students and friends of AFAC. Many attendees were professionals in the independent filmmaking scene who had questions about production and funding. The audience was cosmopolitan, including locals and foreigners as well as multi-generational.

During the nightly Q&A sessions, discussions on creative and directorial decisions were brought up in why the filmmakers chose to address their topics the way they did. The current context of transformation, instability and change was an apparent theme in each of the projects and an eye-opener for audiences. As one attendee from Syria, a recent university graduate, commented after watching Sara Ishaq’s film, “What I saw was happening in the homes and families in Yemen are the same things that I experienced back home. I didn’t realize.”
Layal, a young newlywed Palestinian schoolteacher is arrested after being falsely accused and sentenced to 8 years of prison. She is transferred to a high security Israeli women’s prison where she encounters a terrifying world in which Palestinian political prisoners are incarcerated with Israeli criminal inmates. When she discovers she is pregnant, the prison director pressures her to abort the baby and spy on the Palestinian inmates. However, resilient and still in chains, she gives birth to a baby boy. Through her struggle to raise her son behind bars, and her relationship with the other prisoners, she manages to find a sense of hope and a meaning to her life. Prison conditions deteriorate and the Palestinian prisoners decide to strike. The prison director warns her against joining the rebellion and threatens to take her son away. In a moment of truth, Layal is forced to make a choice that will forever change her life.

Monumentum
Fadi Yen Turf | Documentary | Lebanon | 2015

Public monuments visually and physically demarcate space, while claiming a territory of affiliation. In Lebanon, the proliferation of new monuments continues to encroach on so-called public spaces, creating tensions and deepening divisions. Meanwhile, Beirut’s Martyrs’ Square still awaits the materialization of a new master plan. A similar state of uncertainty is experienced in varying degrees of similarities by Baghdad’s Firdos Square, Cairo’s Tahrir Square, Tunis’ January 14 Square, and Manama’s Pearl Roundabout. Recently, some Arab countries have seen the tearing down of monuments representing previous regimes, in an effort to literally leave the floor open to a new page of history. In a region where current political structures are being violently challenged, Monumentum (2015) is an attempt to reflect on these silent monuments encroaching on public spaces, scrutinizing their role as markers of an ever-changing political scenography.

And on a Different Note
Mohammad Shawky Hassan | Short Experimental | Egypt | 2015

Today in this house nothing happens, nor does it in the homes of others. The chronology of events is obscured, subversive noise is obliterated, elucidation impossible and language futile. All that remains is a soundscape perpetually occupied by self-proclaimed patriots, and scattered spaces carved by the rhythm of everyday life, all conspiring to maintain the status quo while hiding the humming background noise of the world. And on a Different Note is a navigation of an attempt to carve out a personal space amid an inescapable sonic shield created primarily by prime time political talk shows with their indistinguishable, absurd, and at times undecipherable rhetoric/noises. Equally repulsive and addictive, these noises travel across geographies gradually constituting an integral part of a self-created map of exile.

Silvered Water, Syria Self-Portrait
Ossama Mohammad and Wiam Simav Bedrixan | Documentary | Syria | 2014

In Syria, every day, YouTubers film then die; others kill then film. In Paris, driven by my inexhaustible love for Syria, I find that I can only film the sky and edit the footage posted on YouTube. From within the tension between my estrangement in France and the revolution, an encounter happened. A young Kurdish woman from Homs began to chat with me, asking: “If your camera were here, in Homs, what would you be filming?” Silvered Water is the story of that encounter.

Checks and Balances
Malek Bensmail | Documentary | Algeria - France | 2015

Accommodated since Algeria’s Bloody Decade of the 1990’s in the “House of the Press”, the journalists of the famous daily newspaper El Watan await the completion of their new offices, a symbol of their independence.

My camera is embedded in their newsroom as they follow the events of this new Algerian spring… President Bouteflika has set his sights on a 4th term.

Beyond what we call the Arab revolutions and other mediatized terms, I wanted this film to serve as a memorial to the women and men, young and less young, who battle daily to safeguard the freedom of information in a politically and socially fossilized country.

74 (The Reconstitution of a Struggle)
Rania and Raed Rafei | Docu-fiction | Lebanon | 2013

1974: Students demonstrate against a tuition increase at the American University of Beirut. For 37 days, they occupy university offices. With the Lebanese student revolt of 1974 as their starting point, filmmakers Rania and Raed Rafei direct an absorbing documentary on the core issues of revolution and democracy. In addition to a meticulous re-enactment, they include theatrical improvisations in which today’s activists give their interpretations of the student leaders’ actions in ’74.

It Was Better Tomorrow
Hinde Boujemaa | Documentary | Tunisia | 2012

Through the hubbub of a revolution, “It was better tomorrow” follows Aida, a Tunisian woman who has to rebuild her entire life and who does not wish to look backwards. She spends her time moving from one poor neighborhood to another. Driven by the will to find a roof over her head and for her children, she takes no notice of the historical events taking place around her. Her only goal is to find a way out and she is convinced that the revolution is a blessing. “It was better tomorrow” shows the atypical journey of this brazen and bold woman in the intense interval of a country’s revolution.

We Were Communists
Maher Abi Samra | Documentary | Lebanon | 2010

Tracing the intersecting destinies of comrades who were once bound by a shared ideological affiliation and who remain tightly knit friends, We Were Communists is an uninhibited examination of the legacy of Lebanon’s civil war. Four men recount their battlefield stories, broken dreams, and eventual disillusionment in light of the country’s ongoing political crises. At once artistically and politically audacious, incisive and tender, the film lays bare the daunting reality of Lebanon’s fractured landscape.

During the first Intifada in the West Bank town of Beit Sahour a group of townspeople decide to buy eighteen cows and produce their own milk as a co-operative. Their venture is so successful that the collective farm becomes a landmark, and the cows local celebrities, until the Israeli army takes note and declares that the cows pose “a threat to the national security of the state of Israel.” Consequently, the dairy is forced to go underground, the cows continuing to produce their “Intifada milk” with the Israeli army in relentless pursuit.

Yasmina and the 60 Names Of Love
Nacer Kemir | Documentary | Tunisia | 2013

“Yasmina and the 60 names of love” is a hybrid, an unclassifiable film built on drawing a deeply personal journey with a lot of autobiographical elements. When this ancestor tells his life, the speech is raw. She speaks of suffering, of a harsh and cruel life. The viewer is mesmerized by this being in the twilight of her life. And like a litany, the names of love are listed, translated and hypnotize the ones who hears them. This film is certainly more of a philosophical research, with its share of requirement. A requirement that, according to the author, lacks in today’s society and participates in its own decadence.
